Congress Plans No Attempt For Overriding Veto

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—UP—President Eisenhower regretfully vetoed the controversial natural gas bill Friday because of the "arrogant" tactics used by a "very small segment" of the oil-gas industry to ram it through Congress.

Hussey Blasts Gas Bill Action As 'Ridiculous'

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 17 (AP)—Conservation commissioner John Hussey today branded President Eisenhower's reasons for vetoing the natural gas bill "absolutely ridiculous" and "without considered regard for natural resources of the United States."

The Louisiana official is a member of pro-Eisenhower Gov. Robert Kennon's administration. He said the veto "will greatly discourage search for new natural gas reserves."

Kennon was unavailable for comment. He was in Washington today.

While Texas reigns as the king of natural gas, Louisiana is the second largest gas producer in the nation.

Its network of oil and gas pipelines within the state would reach seven times between New Orleans and New York.

Hussey is a Shreveport attorney. Kennon named him to head the state agency regulating the oil and gas industry.

"In Louisiana," the commissioner stressed, "there have been several attempts to keep our own gas within the state and the President's action very easily could revive efforts to keep Louisiana's vast natural gas resources at home."

Cloudy, Cooler Forecast In Wake Of Thunderstorms

Northeast Louisiana is expected to be cloudy and cooler Saturday and Sunday, following on the heels of stormy weather all across the north section of the state Friday night.

Storm and possible tornado warnings were issued shortly after noon Friday by weather bureaus at Memphis and Little Rock for a large area extending from East Texas to West Tennessee and Alabama. Louisiana was swept from West to East across the north portion by electrical thunderstorms that struck the Shreveport area about 8 p.m., with winds reported up to 35 and 40 miles per hour and extending into Southern Arkansas. By 11 p.m. the heavy rain and wind was nearing the Mississippi river and Vicksburg.

Meanwhile tornado disturbances were reported by an army plane to be building up behind the stormy weather front in the general area of 20 miles southeast of Jonesboro and Ruston to Monroe and Grayson and moving eastward. No serious damages from the thunderstorms in northeast Louisiana had been reported by 11 p.m.

The only tornado reported in the Texas to Alabama storm area by 11 p.m. was that one had struck somewhere north of Vicksburg. Details were unknown.

In the Monroe-West Monroe vicinity, little damage was reported. Most serious was that a house in the Selman Field housing project which had been stricken by lightning. The person reporting to the fire department shortly after 10 p.m. said the house was not burning but that it smelled smoke. A fire truck was dispatched but had not reported by 11 p.m.

The Monroe electric service reported that fast moving winds ripped wires from their moorings in most sections of town. E. W. Kitchens, operator at the Monroe electric service, said the College area, Selman Field area, Pargoud Boulevard and Park Avenue were the sections most affected by the gale-like winds. He added that a minor cause of damages was transformer troubles.

Three Tornadoes Spread Minor Damage In Texas; One Hurdles Over Dallas

By UNITED PRESS

At least three tornadoes roared through Central and North Central Texas Friday, blasting houses into rubble, twisting trees up by their roots and demolishing barns and garages.

No deaths or injuries were reported. But twisters were reported northwest of Hillsboro, in the Blum area northwest of Hillsboro; at Gustine, in Comanche county, and at Granger, in Williamson county, 150 miles south of Fort Worth.

Apparently the tornado that hit in the Hillsboro-Blum area was a different twister from the ones that hit a Gustine and in Granger.

High winds buffeted Itasca, 11 miles north of Hillsboro, about the same time the twister dipped to earth northwest of Hillsboro. It ripped the roof from the old ice plant at Itasca.

The tornadoes burst out of a vast squall line stretching from Waco, in Central Texas, to Muscle Shoals, Ala., three states away. The alert was to last until 2 a.m.

LSU Officials May Set Up Entrance Requirements, Ban Mixed Sports Events

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 17 (AP)—Pro-segregation forces tomorrow seek to head off more Negro students at Louisiana State University with stiffer entrance requirements and prevent LSU athletes from playing against Negroes.

The LSU board of supervisors meets in special session to consider and act upon:

1. The matter of adopting admission requirements to the university.
2. Athletic policies.

Chairman Lewis Gottlieb said a suggestion under consideration was that LSU teams refuse to meet any teams with Negro players.

A counter proposal, he said, was that the "color" clause be applied only at home games.

Athletic director James Corbett asked the board to establish a policy on segregation so he could plan future schedules.

He explained he brought the matter up to forestall any incident similar to that last year when Georgia Gov. Marvin Griffin objected to Georgia Tech playing in the Sugar Bowl because Pittsburgh had a Negro player.

Gottlieb said one suggestion for tougher entrance requirements called for:

1. Two LSU alumni to sign an application and letter of recommendation.
2. A statement from a juvenile judge testifying to the applicant's good character.

A certificate from the parish coroner or competent medical authority that the applicant has no communicable disease.

4. A written entrance examination.

Body Of Hazing Victim Recovered From Reservoir

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 17—UP—The body of a college freshman hazing victim was recovered Friday from an icy reservoir where he drowned in a "hell week" initiation stunt.

Thomas L. Clark, 18, of Harvard, Ill., a freshman at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, drowned early last Friday, police believed. He apparently was crossing the Cambridge reservoir in nearby Waltham after being left off on a lonely wooded road with instructions to "use your own resources" to get back.

The reservoir is 12 miles from Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house where Clark's friends waited in vain for him. He was supposed to have returned by 8 a. m. a week ago Friday.

Dr. James R. Killian, MIT president, expressed "sympathy and overwhelming regret" and promised to end hazing at the institution.

Killian said Clark's "fraternity mates were completely innocent of any conscious negligence. They, too, were victims of long-practiced tradition and procedures which it is now clear cannot be condoned in this institution or any other."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—UP—Saudi Arabia said Friday night it expects the United States to live up to its "commitment" to deliver 18 "bought and paid for" tanks to the Arab nation.

Saudi Arabian Ambassador Abdulrahman Al-Khazayal made the statement after an hour-long meeting with George V. Allen, assistant secretary of state for Middle East affairs.

The envoy also said the sudden U. S. ban on Middle East arms shipments "will necessarily create an unfortunate impression on the people of Saudi Arabia and the Arab world."

Meantime, Israeli embassy reported that the American ban also will block shipment of about $100,000 worth of logistic equipment needed for maintenance purposes by Israeli forces in the underbox Middle East.

But an Israeli spokesman said there is nothing in the pipeline in the way of ammunition, guns or "anything that kills." Therefore, he said the general embargo will not weaken Israeli militarily.

The arms ban was announced by the State Department early Friday morning after it was disclosed that a ship was scheduled to leave a Brooklyn, N. Y. pier Friday with the 18 modern tanks. The department had said they were intended solely for "training purpose."

Al-Khazayal said he and Allen did not discuss the U. S. Arabian agreement covering American use of the big air base at Dhahran, only 1,000 miles from the Russian city of Baku. The base is a key part of western European defense against Communist aggression.

The envoy then was asked whether a long-term arms embargo would affect forthcoming peace talks.

Leathernecks En Route To Overseas Area

Crash Scene Near Alameda, Calif.; All Aboard Perish

NILES, Calif., Feb. 17—UP—A four-engine Marine Corps transport plane, carrying a crew of five and 33 Leathernecks bound for overseas assignment, slammed headlong into a rock ridge near here Friday, killing all aboard.

The plane, an R-5D from El Toro Marine base in Southern California, crashed just eight minutes after leaving the Alameda Naval Air Station on the east shore of San Francisco Bay.

The crash occurred on the Elmer O'Connell ranch, about 3 1/2 miles northeast of here, in terrain so rugged it was more than an hour before the first person reached the wreck.

Military authorities at El Toro, south of Los Angeles, said the plane left there at 12:30 p. m. CST. It plowed into the ridge at about 3:45 p. m., just three minutes after the pilot reported to the CAA tower at Oakland municipal airport that he was on his approach to Alameda.

The first man to reach the scene was rancher George King, 61, who lives about a mile away. King said he and his wife heard the plane flying "just too darn low" and then heard a tremendous explosion.

"It took me about an hour to get up there," he said. "It's only about a mile, but it seems like five what with the steepness and mud and brush and all."

"I went around and looked at all the bodies to see if anyone was alive, but it was no use. So I just stuck around until someone else got there," he said.

This reporter, accompanied by two priests from Holy Rosary Catholic Church in Decota, Fathers Thomas McCullough and Ralph Duggan, were among the first to arrive after King.

Father Duggan looked around and said, "It's no use Tom. They are all gone now. I guess all we can do is pray."

The big four-engine plane, the military counterpart of the Douglas DC-6 airliner, apparently just missed the top of one ridge, flew up a steep canyon and slammed into a 45 degree hill at the end.

The spokesman emphasized that the arrangements for the maneuvers are tentative and dependent on the availability of troops and approval of financing by Congress.

Shipments To Reds

Senators Demand Facts On 'Secret' Trade Agreement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—Senate investigators demanded Friday that the administration disclose whether the western allies secretly agreed to permit shipment of some strategic metals to the Soviet bloc.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) of the Senate investigating subcommittee made the demand after Dr. Timothy May, a Defense Department metals expert, said he could not reveal whether such controls were lifted at a 15-nation meeting in 1954.

McClellan ordered Robert Pennoyer, a department attorney, to get a definite answer on whether the administration would provide this information.

After making a telephone call to the Pentagon building, Pennoyer reported that the request would be considered immediately. He said the subcommittee should receive an answer shortly.

McClellan said it is "common knowledge" that such strategic materials as aluminum now can be sold to the Communists. He emphasized that the subcommittee is "determined to get the facts" in order to let Congress and the American people know "what is going on."

He also indicated that high administration officials — possibly former Foreign Aid Chief Harold E. Stassen and Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks — will be called to testify at the hearings on East-West trade.

May testified that the Defense Department argued strongly against relaxing the embargo on strategic shipments to the Reds before the 1954 trade meeting in Paris.

This country still has a tight ban on such shipments. But Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) charged that the administration agreed to allow other countries to sell strategic goods to the Communists.

Some western nations, notably Britain, recently have been pressing for a further relaxation of trade rules. The issue was discussed during British Prime Minister Anthony Eden's recent talks here with President Eisenhower.

Britain, France Refuse To Block Flow Of Arms

LONDON, Feb. 17 (AP)—Britain and France refused Friday to follow the lead of the U.S. government in halting all arms shipments to the tense Middle East.

The British foreign office, apparently surprised by the Washington announcement, said it would continue sending arms for the time being, at least.

The French foreign ministry said it would continue to export heavy arms to the Middle East area. But the French banned shipments of light arms because they might slip into the hands of North African rebels.

The U.S. government early Friday had announced a temporary suspension of all arms export permits to take Middle East following protests against a scheduled shipment of tanks to Saudi Arabia.

(In Cairo, Arab political circles said the U.S. move would stir "distinct resentment" of Arab governments and charged it was an American "conciliatory gesture" toward Israel.)

(In Tel Aviv, the Israeli foreign ministry expressed satisfaction of the temporary embargo. But a ministry spokesman said Israel's request for U.S. arms is "as imperative as ever.")

The abrupt American action appeared to have caught the British government completely by surprise. The foreign office learned of the action through press reports.

There was no immediate indication to whether Britain eventually might follow the American lead. But a foreign office spokesman told a news conference that Britain's Middle East arms policy will remain "unchanged" for the present.

Britain's policy was laid down before parliament two weeks ago by Minister of State Anthony Nutting.

Saudi Arabians Demand U.S. Fill Tank Commitment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—Saudi Arabia said Friday night it expects the United States to live up to its "commitment" to deliver 18 "bought and paid for" tanks to the Arab nation.

Saudi Arabian Ambassador Abdullah Al-Kharyal said the statement after an hour-long meeting with George V. Allen, assistant secretary of state for Middle East affairs.

The envoy also said the sudden U.S. ban on Middle East arms shipments "will necessarily create an unfortunate impression on the people of Saudi Arabia and the Arab world."

Meantime, Israeli embassy reported that the American ban also will block shipment of about $110,000 worth of logistic equipment needed for maintenance purposes by Israeli forces in the tinderbox Middle East.

But an Israeli spokesman said there is nothing in the pipeline in the way of ammunition, guns or "anything that kills." Therefore, he said the general embargo will not weaken Israeli militarily.

The arms ban was announced by the State Department early Friday morning after it was disclosed that a ship was scheduled to leave a Brooklyn, N. Y., pier Friday with the 18 modern tanks. The department had said they were intended solely for "training purposes."

Al-Kharyal said he and Allen did not discuss the U. S. Arabian agreement covering American use of the big air base at Dhahran, only 1,000 miles from the Russian city of Baku. The base is a key part of western European defense against Communist aggression.

The envoy then was asked whether a long-term arms embargo would affect forthcoming negotiations. (Continued On Twelfth Page)

Leathernecks En Route To Overseas Area

Crash Scene Near Alameda, Calif.; All Aboard Perish

NILES, Calif., Feb. 17 (AP)—A four-engine Marine Corps transport plane, carrying a crew of five and 33 Leathernecks bound for overseas assignment, slammed headlong into a rock ridge near here Friday, killing all aboard.

The plane, an R-5D from El Toro Marine base in Southern California, crashed just eight minutes its destination at Alameda Naval Air Station on the east shore of San Francisco Bay.

The crash occurred on the Elmer O'Connell ranch, about 3 1/2 miles northeast of here, in terrain so rugged it was more than an hour before the first person reached the wreck.

Military authorities at El Toro, south of Los Angeles, said the plane left there at 12:30 p. m. CST. It plowed into the ridge at about 3:45 p. m., just three minutes after the pilot reported to the CAA tower at Oakland municipal airport that he was on his approach to Alameda.

The first man to reach the scene was rancher George King, 61, who lives about a mile away. King said he and his wife heard the plane flying "just too darn low" and then heard a tremendous explosion.

"It took me about an hour to get up there," he said. "It's only about a mile, but it seems like five what with the steepness and mud and brush and all."

"I went around and looked at all the bodies to see if anyone was alive, but it was no use. So I just stuck around until someone else got there," he said.

This reporter, accompanied by two priests from Holy Rosary Catholic Church in Decota, Fathers Thomas McCullough and Ralph Duggan, were among the first to arrive after King.

Father Duggan looked around and said, "It's no use Tom. They are all gone now. I guess all we can do is pray."

The big four-engine plane, the military counterpart of the Douglas DC-6 airliner, apparently just missed the top of one ridge, flew up a steep canyon and slammed into a 45 degree hill at the end.

Probe Of Police Being Continued By Grand Jury

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17 (AP)—A grand jury, investigating New Orleans police, today called for the trial records of Lt. Louis Hill and Sgt. Clifford Reuther, two former policemen acquitted of bribery charges.

Their trial ended with crime investigator Aaron Kohn going to jail for contempt of court. Kohn refused to tell who gave him information used against Hill and Reuther.

Kohn's information included a list of certain places where pay-offs were allegedly made to police.

The grand jury, which ends its term March 5, is investigating charges of bribery within the police department.

Foreman Paul H. Maloney Jr. has declined comment on what progress has been made.

Cross Word Puzzle Jackpot Entact, But Suspense Weakens Bonanza Bill

BY BONANZA BILL

The Morning World Cross Word puzzle jackpot worth $150 didn't crack this week, but old Bonanza Bill also did as the suspense mounted while judges were checking the thousands of entries in the competition.

The judges failed to come up with a winner, so the jackpot for the puzzle to be published in the Monday and Tuesday editions of the World next week will carry a jackpot worth $175.

Here are explanations of the more difficult clues to this week's puzzle:

East Carroll Corps To Take Part In Test

(Special) — The newly organized Ground Observer Corps will take part on Feb. 26 in a "Red" alert for this entire area, from 1 to 5 p.m. when planes from Barksdale Air Force Base and Lackland Air Force Base will fly over Lake Providence to test the efficiency of the corps, according to John Markey, Chief Observer for East Carroll parish.

The recently completed Observation Tower, located on the Mississippi River levee, near downtown Lake Providence, is the first tower to be erected and manned in the entire Shreveport area and will be the focal point for the planes' flight.

Headquarters for Ground Observer Corps in this area is the Air Force Filter Center Command in Shreveport. Officers and men from this center have been working closely with the Lake Providence unit during their training period. A total of 27 observers have completed their training and it is hoped that at least 100 others will be trained shortly. Eleven new recruits began their training this week, Markey stated, and other training sessions will be initiated from time to time.

The Observation Tower was erected as the cooperative effort of the Parish Civil Defense Unit, headed by Dr. C. A. Kelly and the Ground Observer Corps of the Air Force, with C. A. Rose serving as liaison officer between the two units. Cost of the Tower, which was approximately $600, was shared equally by the Lake Providence Town Council and the East Carroll Parish Police Jury. The Filter Command Center at Shreveport has asked for blueprints of the tower so that it might be duplicated in other towns and cities along the Mississippi. Future plans include the installation of a beacon on top of the tower.

At present the Observation Post will be manned only for alerts, but will operate on a stand-by basis, awaiting further orders from the Air Force. Periodic reports will be submitted to the area headquarters by Mr. Markey, Chief Observer and Mrs. Nell H. Patrick, Post Observer.

Tentative plans call for dedication of the tower on March 6th, when pictures will be made by the Air Force and appropriate dedication services held.

Eden Government Clamps Down On Public Spending

LONDON, Feb. 17 (AP)—Prime Minister Eden's government clamped down today on free-spending Britons with an emergency "stop inflation" program. It cut food subsidies, tightened installment buying, curbed business investment and reduced defense outlays 38 million pounds — $106,400,000.

Announcing the drastic measures to a tense House of Commons, the new chancellor of the exchequer, Harold Macmillan, said government spending in other departments will also be curbed rigorously.

The nation's defense bill for 1955-56 is to be reduced to 1,499,000,000 pounds — $4,197,200,000. It was Macmillan's second move within as many days to slow down the flow of money which has Britons bidding prices up. Yesterday he raised the nationalized Bank of England's rate for lending money to 5½ per cent, its highest level in 24 years.

The government hopes the spending curbs will divert more home production to the export markets and reduce the whopping bill import bill. The island nation, which lives off its foreign trade, has been buying more abroad than it is selling.

The Laborite opposition roared "rosign" when Macmillan disclosed that government subsidies on milk and bread are to be reduced. The housewife is to pay half a penny more for a pint of milk and the price of the 7½-pence loaf goes up a penny. A British penny is worth a little more than an American cent.

The chancellor said the brakes would be slammed on the public's biggest buying spree in history through boosting down payments in installment buying of television sets, refrigerators and other household goods. Business firms will have to make bigger down payments when purchasing machinery and other equipment on credit.

The government's own economy measures, Macmillan said, will include reductions in staff, cuts in stockpiling for home defense, and a slow-down in public works construction. The chancellor warned severe cuts in other government services might be forthcoming if the new measures fail to do the job.

Bids Received By City Council For Electrical Items

Bids for electrical equipment were received at a meeting of the city council in Mayor John E. Coon's office Friday morning. The bids were turned over to T. L. Van Fossen, engineer, and Frank X. Cline, commissioner of finance and utilities for study. They will report back to the council at an early date because of the emergency need for the equipment.

The bids were for six K. V. A. transformers, three for the Ouachita parish court house and three for the J. C. Penney building. Collins Electrical Company, Inc., Monroe Hardware, Southern Hardware, Weeks Supply Co. and Tri-State Mill Supply Co. submitted bids.

Bastrop Police Solve Burglary

BASTROP, Feb. 17 (Special)—A $1,500 burglary of the Golden Slipper Nightclub, 201 High street, which occurred Feb. 13, was solved by the Bastrop police department with the arrest of two Negroes Thursday.

Bastrop Chief of Police Ray Sibley identified the two men as James Bershell, 20, and Woodson Martin, 23, both of Bastrop.

Chief Sibley said that the two men had entered the nightclub through a rear window of the building.

Bershell had one money sack on his person when arrested, Chief Sibley said, and the sack contained $258.80. Sibley said that Bershell had spent $374 on an automobile, $32.75 for a pistol and $150 for miscellaneous items.

Martin, Chief Sibley reported, had $88 hidden in a large bucket in his refrigerator and $798 was sewed up in a towel. When police arrested Martin at his home Wednesday the towel was lying in the back yard.

Chief Sibley said that Martin had admitted entering a Conoco Service Station in Bastrop on Feb. 9 and taking a small amount of money.

The two men are being held in the Morehouse parish jail and are expected to be arraigned Monday.

Probers Report:

Irregularities But No Fraud In Jefferson Mixup

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17—UP—State attorney general investigators found certain irregularities, but no fraud in their investigation of the first primary returns in Jefferson parish, it was disclosed today.

Attorney General Fred S. LeBlanc said "we found no fraud, but we did find certain irregularities that apparently resulted from misunderstanding."

The investigation was ordered after complaints of irregularities were made by commissioner-at-large elect Jules G. Mollere and other candidates endorsed by Mollere's Jefferson Democratic Association in opposition to Sheriff Frank J. Clancy and his candidates.

In the examination of witnesses called by both political factions, he said, were incidents in no way related to the complaints of irregularities.

"For instance, one witness complained at the hearing that she was pushed out of a polling booth in Westwego City Hall," he said. "She identified the person who pushed her as a Clancy supporter. Now this incident had no relation to the complaint of irregularities and we are recommending that the Jefferson parish grand jury look into this complaint."

"A second complaint to us was that the supporters of Mollere forced their way into an office in the Gretna courthouse the morning after the election and demanded to know the unofficial tabulation of the vote."

Kelly Wanted It That Way

By Adela Rogers St. Johns
Magazine and Short Story Writer

Just hearing what Jack Dempsey said at Mark Kelly's funeral three years ago would tell you all that Mark had done for his fellow man. Then you would know Mark. Have to.

Mark Kelly was sports editor and feature columnist of the Los Angeles Examiner. He was the best sports writer west of New York.

It was Damon Runyon who christened Mark Kelly "The Red Rooster of the Arroya."

Runyon used to come out to cover the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day, and the Rose Bowl is located in the Arroya Seco, a dry wash near Pasadena, California. At the time of this big game Mark Kelly acted as host to all the top sports writers. It did seem at times as though Mark owned both the Rose Bowl and the whole Arroya; it really did.

Then, too, Kelly was red-headed, with a crest of bright red curls standing up like a comb. He was about 5'7" or 5'8" tops and had all the assurance and cockiness and flight of a bantam rooster.

Mark tore the cover off anything he didn't think was good for clean sports of every kind. When on a Chicago paper in 1919, he broke the Black Sox scandal. This was followed by the appointment of a baseball commissioner with the result that baseball has been above suspicion ever since.

He was a rough, tough, hard-boiled, tender, loyal, kind, truthful and fearless man. He was the best-read man I ever knew, and he could choke up and get tears in his eyes over a delicate Irish short story at the same time he was blowing a fixed fight or a crooked promoter out of the game forever.

All Loved Him
I loved him and so did Dempsey and Gene Fowler and Runyon and hundreds of others who came that morning to the beautiful church of St. Timothy to pay him their last respects.

Of course, we had known for some time.

Not from Kelly. Kelly didn't talk about things like that. He kept right on working, making trips to the hospital. Usually nobody even knew he'd been.

But — we knew. We could see. When Harry Brand, his best friend, and Hollywood's wittiest man, called to tell me that this time Kelly hadn't made it, I felt that the world had changed completely. It had to be a different world without Kelly in it. As Dick Hyland said in the best column written after Mark's death, Kelly was a teacher. Thinking it over I knew that it was true. He taught you how to live.

A Runyon Dream
The attendance was a Runyon dream. Newspaper publishers of papers Kelly had worked for and against, hoodlums and university presidents, pickpockets and big game coaches and stars, movie producers and fight referees, philanthropists and wrestlers. TV and radio big shots and con men, corporation heads and baseball Hall of Fame candidates — all the characters out of the Runyon stories along with the most important figures from about every field anybody could think of. Mostly men. Kelly was a man's man.

The church, filled with golden light, was jammed. I wish a great artist could have done a mural of those faces as they lifted to follow the service: distinguished faces; tough faces with broken noses and cauliflower ears; esthetic young faces; stout, wise faces; and tears on faces that had been strangers to tears for a long time.

They were all turned toward the casket that stood high and plain between us and the altar.

Not A Flower

It looked like a big, wooden box and there wasn't a single flower. No blanket, no wreaths, no pieces, no baskets. Not one. And that was a gathering that by nature would have topped any funeral ever given for floral tributes. None of us had dared. It showed how we respected Kelly and how scared we were. He hadn't wanted flowers and on numerous occasions he had said so. He was not, he said, sticking out his jaw, the type for flowers.

So there weren't any. The casket was absolutely bare.

It was strange, but as the music filled the air around us with soft beauty, I felt the lift in the church.

And just then Dempsey leaned over and whispered in my ear.

"Kelly," he said, "is not in the box."

"What?" I whispered back.

"Probably Squawking!"

"Kelly is not in the box," Jack Dempsey said, "Nobody ever got Kelly in a box. I do not know exactly where he is right this minute; he is probably squawking to St. Peter about his seats, but I know he is not in the box."

My heart swelled.

I knew it, too. Kelly wasn't in the box.

Everybody in the big church knew it. That was the reason for that lift I'd felt. Their faces were peaceful, the toughest of them; they wore little lingering smiles that grew out of their memories of what manner of man Kelly had been. Grew out of their love for and belief in him and their knowledge that he wasn't in the bare box up there in front of the altar.

What more can a man do for his brothers than to convince them that whatever happens to his body nobody can put his immortal soul in a box — it goes marching on. In our times, among all kinds of people, that is a resurrection, isn't it?

TOMORROW — Rosalind Russell, screen star, tells an unusual story involving an old friend, a religious medal and a rescue at sea, which taught a man the value of prayer.

Plans Mapped For Red Cross Drive

LAKE PROVIDENCE, Feb. 17—(Special) — Mark H. Brown, Chairman of the East Carroll Parish Chapter of the American Red Cross, announced the appointment of Rev. T. M. Lancaster as chairman of the annual Red Cross Drive.

The drive will begin March 1, and plans are being made to complete the entire drive during the first week of March. Brown states that everyone's contribution is needed, no matter how small. The number of calls made on the local Red Cross Chapter during the past year was very large and since more than one-half of the funds collected remain in the local office, Brown urged that everyone give generously so that there will be funds on hand when needed.

Kelly Wanted It That Way

By Adela Rogers St. Johns
Magazine and Short Story Writer

Just hearing what Jack Dempsey said at Mark Kelly's funeral three years ago would tell you all that Mark had done for his fellow man. Then you would know Mark. Have to.

Mark Kelly was sports editor and feature columnist of the Los Angeles Examiner. He was the best sports writer west of New York.

It was Damon Runyon who christened Mark Kelly "The Red Rooster of the Arroyo."

Runyon used to come out to cover the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day, and the Rose Bowl is located in the Arroyo Seco, a dry wash near Pasadena, California. At the time of this big game Mark Kelly acted as host to all the top sports writers. It did seem at times, as though Mark owned both the Rose Bowl and the whole Arroyo; it really did.

Bright Curls

Then, too, Kelly was red-headed, with a crest of bright red curls standing up like a comb. He was about 5'7" or 5'8" tops and had all the assurance and cockiness and fight of a bantam rooster.

Mark tore the cover off anything he didn't think was good for clean sports of every kind. When on a Chicago paper in 1919, he broke the Black Sox scandal. This was followed by the appointment of a baseball commissioner with the result that baseball has been above suspicion ever since.

He was a rough, tough, hard-boiled, tender, loyal, kind, truthful and fearless man. He was the best-read man I ever knew, and he could choke up and get tears in his eyes over a delicate Irish short story at the same time he was blowing a fixed fight or a crooked promoter out of the game forever.

All Loved Him

I loved him and so did Dempsey and Gene Fowler and Runyon and hundreds of others who came that morning to the beautiful church of St. Timothy to pay him their last respects.

Of course, we had known for some time.

Not from Kelly. Kelly didn't talk about things like that. He kept right on working, making trips to the hospital. Usually nobody even knew he'd been.

But — we knew. We could see. When Harry Brand, his best friend, and Hollywood's wittiest man, called to tell me that this time Kelly hadn't made it, I felt that the world had changed completely. It had to be a different world without Kelly in it. As Dick Hyland said in the best column written after Mark's death, Kelly was a teacher. Thinking it over I knew that it was true. He taught you how to live.

A Runyon Dream

The attendance was a Runyon dream. Newspaper publishers of papers Kelly had worked for and against, hoodlums and university presidents, pickpockets and big game coaches and stars, movie producers and fight referees, philanthropists and wrestlers. TV and radio big shots and con men, corporation heads and baseball Hall of Fame candidates — all the characters out of the Runyon stories along with the most important figures from about every field anybody could think of. Mostly men. Kelly was a man's man.

The church, filled with golden light, was jammed. I wish a great artist could have done a mural of those faces as they lifted to follow the service: distinguished faces; tough faces with broken noses and cauliflower ears; esthetic young faces; stout, wise faces; and tears on faces that had been strangers to tears for a long time.

They were all turned toward the casket that stood high and plain between us and the altar.

Not A Flower

It looked like a big, wooden box and there wasn't a single flower. No blanket, no wreaths, no pieces, no baskets. Not one. And that was a gathering that by nature would have topped any funeral ever given for floral tributes. None of us had dared. It showed how we respected Kelly and how scared we were. He hadn't wanted flowers and on numerous occasions he had said so. He was not, he said, sticking out his jaw, the type for flowers.

So there weren't any. The casket was absolutely bare.

It was strange, but as the music filled the air around us with soft beauty, I felt the lift in the church. And just then Dempsey leaned over and whispered in my ear.

"Kelly," he said, "is not in the box."

"What?" I whispered back.

"Probably Squawking"

"Kelly is not in the box," Jack Dempsey said, "Nobody ever got Kelly in a box. I do not know exactly where he is right this minute; he is probably squawking to St. Peter about his seats, but I know he is not in the box."

My heart swelled.

I knew it, too. Kelly wasn't in the box.

Everybody in the big church knew it. That was the reason for that lift I'd felt. Their faces were peaceful, the toughest of them; they wore little lingering smiles that grew out of their memories of what manner of man Kelly had been. Grew out of their love for and belief in him and their knowledge that he wasn't in the bare box up there in front of the altar.

Plans Mapped For Red Cross Drive

LAKE PROVIDENCE, Feb. 17—(Special) — Mark H. Brown, Chairman of the East Carroll Parish Chapter of the American Red Cross, announced the appointment of Rev. T. M. Lancaster as chairman of the annual Red Cross Drive.

The drive will begin March 1, and plans are being made to complete the entire drive during the first week of March. Brown states that everyone's contribution is needed, no matter how small. The number of calls made on the local Red Cross Chapter during the past year was very large and since more than one-half of the funds collected remain in the local office, Brown urged that everyone give generously so that there will be funds on hand when needed.

'Pock-Marks' On 'Old Sol'

Within a few months, you may be able to look through a smoked glass and see a big spot on the sun.

The 11-year sunspot cycle—to be exact, 11.13 years—approaches its zenith, due in 1957-58, coinciding with the International Geophysical Year that most nations of earth will observe.

Geophysics, of course, is the science of earth-ology, the rotating and revolving planet, and the stresses and strains laid upon it internally and from without.

Sunspots definitely affect all electronic communications on earth—telephone, teletypes, radio, television, radar—often snarling them in vast solar magnetic cataclysms. At the height of the sunspot cycle, a walkie-talkie with a 30-mile transmission radius may be picked up half a world away, and a radio announcer's voice break into your conversation on the telephone. Old chimneys may broadcast music—or an old-fashioned iron kitchen stove.

The National Geographic Society pointed out in a recent bulletin that Chinese astronomers recorded sunspots as early as 28 B. C.

The famed astronomer Galileo, observing these "pock-marks" on the sun, made the monumental discovery that they moved in a pattern; and hence deduced that the sun, like the earth, rotated on an axis.

A sunspot may be a mere dot in a powerful telescope—perhaps 1,000 miles in diameter—or it may project its blue-black shadow across a quarter of the face of Old Sol, as in 1947, the last peak of the sunspot cycle. This, incidentally, was the largest sunspot on record.

Although under observation for more than 2,000 years, sunspots are little known and understood today. Formerly they were regarded as centers of low heat, in the super-heated gaseous atmosphere of the sun, probably stoked by nuclear fusion. Now they are believed to be centers of ultra-heat.

Their spiral pattern—similar to a tropical hurricane, is clearly visible in photographs. In another way, they bear a suggestive resemblance to the spiraling storms of earth. They occur mostly on either side of the solar equator, in latitudes 5 degrees to 40. Rarely do they show in latitudes above 45 degrees, toward the solar poles.

These same latitudes spawn our tropical hurricanes, and usually mark their extent, although a few push farther north.

The world now has the best chance ever offered in its history to learn more about sunspots and their effects upon our planet; since innumerable teams of scientists from nearly all nations will be in the field, almost literally all over the globe, making observations in connection with the International Geophysical Year; and these will fall within the peak period of sunspot activity; and the results will be correlated and evaluated, and made universally available in the interests of science.

Red China And The Nationalists

Red China's often-repeated boast to "liberate" Formosa is being backed by tangible moves which may spell trouble for the Nationalist cause.

These include a steady buildup of air bases and air power on the Chinese mainland near the invasion gateways of Quemoy and Matsu, coastal islands held by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek; and a vast drive using forced labor to complete a strategic rail line from the interior to the coast.

This rail line will link the Yingtan, on the important Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad, with the coastal port of Amoy in Fukien Province.

Amoy and Foochow, a little farther north, are the main ports facing Formosa.

The new railroad, started in October, 1954, will be about 700 kilometers long. It will traverse rugged terrain, bridging chasms and tunnelling through mountains. It will, on completion, link Amoy and Foochow with the great northern industrial districts where Red Chinese machine output is concentrated.

It would, of course, be an early major target of Chinese Nationalist air raids in the event of an all-out struggle between these two bitterly opposed ideologies, the Nationalists and the Reds.

Vast gangs of slave laborers have been pressed into the work of building this railroad, according to information reaching the free world. No reliable estimate of a completion date is available. Red Chinese broadcasts, and a recent article in the China Youth News, published in Peiping, have stressed the strategic military importance of the undertaking, and emphasized that the project has been given top priority.

Problems of logistics, perhaps to a far greater extent than any diplomatic considerations involved, in all likelihood have delayed for an indefinite time the proposed "liberation" of Formosa by the Red Chinese.

Lacking control of the seas, Red China must depend upon tenuous land transportation to supply the enormous tonnage of war material needed for this huge military undertaking. The new railroad will no doubt be invaluable to the Red armies, supplementing the rapidly growing system of air transport in the region facing the embattled Nationalists.

In addition to air and rail improvements, Red China is making progress in the building of military roads from the coast into the interior. Truck convoys, moving over these, could transport troops and supplies in quantity.

All indications point to a steady buildup of Red Chinese strength, looking toward a possible D-day when the issue will be decided at gun-point.

Before starting his own company, Henry Ford was an owner and chief engineer of the Detroit Automobile Co., which was formed in 1889. Ford withdrew from the firm because of differences in policy in 1901 and the company later reorganized as the Cadillac Motor Co.

Down In Alabama

I don't need to write this piece. I have a good excuse. I cannot go down to Alabama to study the situation first hand. And even if I could, how much can one know about a complex race problem unless he actually lives with it? Race is even more profound than religion in the spirits of men.

I lived for more than 13 years as a member of a dominant racial minority, generally known as a yang kuei tze, a foreign devil among the Chinese. Were it a matter of preference, they would have got along without us. Certainly, they resented the biological mixture when it occurred; customs, traditions, responses were different and with the best of intentions, one had to be careful not to give offense.

The point about race prejudice is that it is ubiquitous. That does not make it right or just, but a fact. And many facts are ugly and unwanted. And in many cases there are no realistic solutions. The ugly fact continues despite almost universal agreement that it is ugly. This much is certain that there is no evidence in the whole of human history that any race or even nation has been forced by any means to love another race or nation.

Education has done much in the United States to lessen racial prejudice, but not enough to eliminate the problem. For instance, a Jew in New York can be on the most intimate terms with certain men; they may be his close business associates and they may see each other every day and dine in each other's homes, but it is impossible for that Jew to become a member of the club to which, let us say, all of his intimate friends belong. They will advise him not to permit his name to be presented. There is always someone who will exercise the right of blackball on a racial issue. His own sense of superiority requires him to do it. He faces no particular problem; He expresses an inherited and inherent prejudice.

While in practical terms this is meaningless, it represents the same form of racial antagonism which has caused all the trouble in Alabama where I am told by those who should know, gradualism was making significant progress. Gradualism means that Negroes and whites of good will sit down to find solutions for such problems as they can solve; they postpone other problems to subsequent meetings.

Of course, it does happen that some problems can never be solved at a meeting. One of them is intermarriage against which every group has rigid taboos. I was recently in conversation with a Catholic girl whose boy is Jewish and they want to get married. His mother objects to his choice. So they are having a tough time.

As all social relations have their own purpose in marriage, the question of intermarriage looms large in the development of any type of prejudice. There should be enough knowledge in the world that racial purity is a myth; that as we are only beginning to learn about racial origins and migrations, it is very difficult to trace ancestry back far enough on all sides to know exactly what it is and that the genes determine what we are and we know not where our particular genes originated. But knowing that is like learning calculus; you remember it long enough to pass an examination and then go along with your prejudices. The Turks are still concerned about their possible descent from the Hittites, which may be interesting, but what does it prove? Is my Welsh wife pure Celt or was there a Phoenician influence four thousand years ago? Who knows and what difference can it make?

These arguments are not sound because they are unavailing. The prejudices continue even among the literate, even among men of good will. The human race does not function rationally; it is emotional, excitable, with loves and hatreds that make no sense but exist.

The conservative recognizes that the changes that are most effective are those which by slow processes affect the reason. He fears the consequences of emotional responses to public questions; they usually produce the opposite of what was anticipated, and the opposite is usually ugly. The A. J. Muste designed to produce equality usually produce a dictatorship; the cure is often worse than the disease.

Truman's History

Harry S. Truman's own version of history during 1946-52, subtitled "Years of Trial and Hope," tells the story of his presidency in those years as he saw it. Like many other records put on paper within ten years of their occurrence, their accuracy has been questioned.

So far at least five Americans of standing have challenged Truman's recollection of what happened with respect to themselves during his term as president. They are Bernard Baruch, General Patrick Hurley, General Albert C. Wedemeyer, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. In addition, Walter S. Robertson, assistant Secretary of State and one of our qualified experts on China has added his dissent on the blame which the former president has heaped on Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for the loss of China to the Communists.

Their comments leave room for doubt that Truman's assumption of infallibility is justified. MacArthur's reply to the Truman account of the general's dismissal, already summarized by this columnist, gives a distinct impression that Truman's thinking on the Korean war was that United Nations prestige was of more consequence than the success of our arms.

On the confused China policy during the earlier years of his presidency, now known to have shaped the subsequent invasion of Korea, the ex-president, who like his Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, had only a text book knowledge of the Far East and the advice of some State Department advisors, chose to rely entirely on the reports of General of the Army George C. Marshall, whom he had sent to China at the end of 1945 on a special mission. Marshall did not like Chiang Kai-shek and blamed him in his reports, at least in part, for the failure of his own efforts to bring about unification of the Communist and Nationalist forces in China.

Thus the Truman book, in the view of Assistant Secretary Robertson, who is experienced as a Chinese specialist, but was not called into consultation by Acheson, continues the ex-president's earlier efforts "to make Chiang Kai-shek the official scapegoat not only for China's sins, but for our own as well. . . . In my opinion it can be fairly demonstrated that the confused and confusing inconsistencies of our own vacillating policy, however well meaning it may have been, contributed directly and indirectly to the debacle which engulfed him and his government, our ally, and brought into power the Communists, our long avowed enemies."

General Wedemeyer, U. S. military commander in China when Marshall was there, sharply challenges Truman's statement that Wedemeyer and General Patrick Hurley, then U. S. ambassador to China, "led me to think they believed various elements in China could be persuaded to unify the country."

"I did not think it was feasible or practical to unify the widely divergent groups represented on the one hand by the Nationalists and on the other by the Communists, . . . General Wedemeyer says. "I felt from my experience on the ground that it was not possible of accomplishment."

Bernard Baruch has challenged the truth of Truman's version of the drafting of the first American plan for international control of atomic energy, which was later presented to the United Nations. The Truman story was that he and Secretary of State Byrnes had to put Baruch in his place, telling him pointedly that he was not the sponsor of the plan.

Baruch denies this emphatically and such an incident, if it did occur, went absolutely unreported in Washington at a time when the Baruch - Truman talks were proceeding.

Others have questioned some of the supporting incidents cited by the former president to give his accounts verisimilitude. They tend to raise some doubt here as to how much future historians will rely on the Truman account of what happened.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

Punish Parents?

"What do you think about this proposal to punish the parents of children who are arrested for bad behavior?"

I think ill of it. It is altogether unfitting of an intelligent community. It is unwarrantable; it is based on a misconception.

People are fundamentally decent. I have met many many parents of school-age boys and girls. Some of them are top-grade citizens measured in terms of achievement and fine character; some are ignorant people measured by educational standards; some are helpless people who have come to this country without understanding its language its customs and its laws. Never yet have I met a father or mother who did not want to do what would be good for their children. Those who did not do what we well-informed citizens, educators, social workers, all who deal with delinquent children thought they should do, could not because they were helpless in the face of the problems they had to solve daily.

I have heard and read about delinquents who were reared in good homes who got into serious trouble with the courts, but I never yet met one. Those I met came from poor homes, in the worst districts of the city, where whole families were crowded into a few poorly lighted, unsanitary rooms. They could not even keep themselves clean, for the facilities to do so were lacking. There was no money for better housing, for good clothes and for the toys other more fortunate children had as a matter of course.

What would you expect an untutored child whose nose was pressed against the show windows of life, but whose dreams could not hope to carry him inside the shelves, to do? What does anyone suffering from basic hunger do? What would you expect of one who had no hope?

It is useless to blame helpless parents. When their children do wrong, the community—which is basically responsible for the environment, expose them to more intelligent guidance, teach them the better ways of usefulness, behavior and everyday living.

What do we do? We send them to jail or we put them on probation for better housing, for good place that created them, that made them as they are, delinquent.

Our duty is clear. Study the home; try to make it better by teaching the parents; take the children away from them and place them in a camp school in the clean, open country; give them good teachers, and make them over. Those who cannot be helped by instruction and good environment must then be given custodial care supervised by trained teachers, not guards. Punish their parents? Useless and worse.

Stammering is a phase some children go through, but they soon overcome it. Dr. Patri explains why children stammer and tells what to do about this habit in leaflet P-2, "Stammering." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 18, N.Y.

Worry Clinic

By Dr. George W. Crane

Rowena asks a vital question. Newspaper style "peps up" readership far more than the usual style of the writers assigned in college English classes. Why? Because newspapers use more of the modern print psychology outlined below. If our scientific journals did likewise, they'd be better read, too. Case Q-378: Rowena W., aged 19, wants to enter a school of journalism next term.

"Dr. Crane," she began "I have noticed that newspaper style is different from that of the writers whom I have studied in our English courses here at the university."

"Since you have been a columnist for many years, would you mind telling us how to increase the interest value of the printed page?"

Print Psychology
At Northwestern University I took almost all English courses in the curriculum and then minored in English when I obtained my Ph. D. degree, so I have a fairly thorough grounding in the subject.

If this column violates some of the ancient rules, please charge it off to the influence of modern psychology.

For we psychologists have learned to modify some of the old laws of grammar.

Note, in this connection, that the above paragraph is not a sentence but is just a clause, starting with "for".

Short paragraphs thus suggest narration. And this intimates more human interest.

So chop up your copy arbitrarily. A line of typewritten copy equals about 2 lines in a newspaper column.

And throw overboard the old taboo against using Arabic numerals. It stated that any number under 10 should be written out in full.

But the number 2 contrasts far better with the alphabetical letters in "two", so it offers greater "eye-appeal".

Except for the figure "1", which is just the alphabetical letter "l", it is wiser to employ numerals. A number, such as 3 or 5 or 7, shows up far more readily than the equivalent three or five or seven.

Arabic numbers are thus an entirely alien set of visual symbols and give better contrast against our printed Latin letters.

Furthermore, the Roman numerals, such as IV or V or X, are also just capital letters of the alphabet, so they fail to exert the eye-catching value of (4) or (5) or (10) especially if the numbers are placed in parentheses.

Just scan the above paragraph and you'll see that I am telling you the truth. It is axiomatic, although I have also proved the same thing on the tachistoscope, an instrument for giving short time exposure to copy.

Dramatic Type
"Dr. Crane, I have noticed that newspaper style is different, etc.", is one way of opening a direct quotation.

But it offers only one set of quote marks on the opening line.

To break your quotation in order to get three sets, as in the following:

"Dr. Crane," said Rowena, "I have noticed that newspaper style is different, etc. etc."

For quotation marks are the most dramatic print symbols in our language!

They indicate dialogue (repartee). And that means at least 2 people are present.

But whenever 2 people are together, anything may happen, from love to disorder, sexual assault to kidnapping.

Thus, quote marks denote the utmost in dramatic possibilities. It would be well if more scientists utilized these modern rules of print psychology to "pep up" the appearance of their scholarly papers.

"Dress up" often spells the difference between red ink and success in modern merchandising.

So "dress up" your copy. It increases readership as well as adverting results.

For further advice, send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy", enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Fellow scientists, please take note! For our scientific journals often look so dull that even scientists must force ourselves to read them.

'Pock-Marks' On 'Old Sol'

Within a few months, you may be able to look through a smoked glass and see a big spot on the sun.

The 11-year sunspot cycle—to be exact, 11.13 years—approaches its zenith, due in 1957-58, coinciding with the International Geophysical Year that most nations of earth will observe.

Geophysics, of course, is the science of earth-ology, the rotating and revolving planet, and the stresses and strains laid upon it internally and from without.

Sunspots definitely affect all electrical communications on earth—telephone, teletypes, radio, television, radar—often snarling them in vast solar magnetic cataclysms. At the height of the sunspot cycle, a walkie-talkie with a 30-mile transmission radius may be picked up half a world away, and a radio announcer's voice break into your conversation on the telephone. Old chimneys may broadcast music—or an old-fashioned iron kitchen stove.

The National Geographic Society pointed out in a recent bulletin that Chinese astronomers recorded sunspots as early as 28 B. C.

The famed astronomer Galileo, observing these "pock-marks" on the sun, made the monumental discovery that they moved in a pattern; and hence deduced that the sun, like the earth, rotated on an axis.

A sunspot may be a mere dot in a powerful telescope—perhaps 1,000 miles in diameter—or it may project its blue-black shadow across a quarter of the face of Old Sol, as in 1947, the last peak of the sunspot cycle. This, incidentally, was the largest sunspot on record.

Although under observation for more than 2,000 years, sunspots are little known and understood today. Formerly they were regarded as centers of low heat, in the super-heated gaseous atmosphere of the sun, probably stoked by nuclear fusion. Now they are believed to be centers of ultra-heat.

Their spiral pattern—similar to a tropical hurricane, is clearly visible in photographs. In another way, they bear a suggestive resemblance to the spiraling storms of earth. They occur mostly on either side of the solar equator, in latitudes 5 degrees to 40. Rarely do they show in latitudes above 45 degrees, toward the solar poles.

These same latitudes spawn our tropical hurricanes, and usually mark their extent, although a few push farther north.

The world now has the best chance ever offered in its history to learn more about sunspots and their effects upon our planet; since innumerable teams of scientists from nearly all nations will be in the field, almost literally all over the globe, making observations in connection with the International Geophysical Year; and these will fall within the peak period of sunspot activity; and the results will be correlated and evaluated, and made universally available in the interests of science.

Red China And The Nationalists

Red China's often-repeated boast to "iberate" Formosa is being backed by tangible moves which may spell trouble for the Nationalist cause.

These include a steady buildup of air bases and air power on the Chinese mainland near the invasion gateways of Quemoy and Matsu, coastal islands held by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek; and a vast drive using forced labor to complete a strategic rail line from the interior to the coast.

This rail line will link the Yingtan, on the important Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad, with the coastal port of Amoy in Fukien Province.

Amoy and Foochow, a little farther north, are the main ports facing Formosa.

The new railroad, started in October, 1954, will be about 700 kilometers long. It will traverse rugged terrain, bridging chasms and tunnelling through mountains. It will, on completion, link Amoy and Foochow with the great northern industrial districts where Red Chinese machine output is concentrated.

It would, of course, be an early major target of Chinese Nationalist air raids in the event of an all-out struggle between these two bitterly opposed ideologies, the Nationalists and the Reds.

Vast gangs of slave laborers have been pressed into the work of building this railroad, according to information reaching the free world. No reliable estimate of a completion date is available. Red Chinese broadcasts, and a recent article in the China Youth News, published in Peiping, have stressed the strategic military importance of the undertaking, and emphasized that the project has been given top priority.

Problems of logistics, perhaps to a far greater extent than any diplomatic considerations involved, in all likelihood have delayed for an indefinite time the proposed "liberation" of Formosa by the Red Chinese.

Lacking control of the seas, Red China must depend upon tenuous land transportation to supply the enormous tonnage of war material needed for this huge military undertaking. The new railroad will no doubt be invaluable to the Red armies, supplementing the rapidly growing system of air transport in the region facing the embattled Nationalists.

In addition to air and rail improvements, Red China is making progress in the building of military roads from the coast into the interior. Truck convoys, moving over these, could transport troops and supplies in quantity.

All indications point to a steady buildup of Red Chinese strength, looking toward a possible D-day when the issue will be decided at gun-point.

Before starting his own company, Henry Ford was an owner and chief engineer of the Detroit Automobile Co. which was formed in 1889. Ford withdrew from the firm because of differences in policy in 1901 and the company later reorganized as the Cadillac Motor Co.

Down In Alabama

I don't need to write this piece. I have a good excuse. I cannot go down to Alabama to study the situation first hand. And even if I could, how much can one know about a complex race problem unless he actually lives with it? Race is even more profound than religion in the spirits of men.

I lived for more than 13 years as a member of a dominant racial minority, generally known as a "yang kuei tze," a foreign devil among the Chinese. Were it a matter of preference, they would have got along without us. Certainly, they resented the biological mixture, when it occurred; customs, traditions, responses were different and with the best of intentions, one had to be careful not to give offense.

The point about race prejudice is that it is ubiquitous. That does not make it right or just, but a fact. And many facts are ugly and unwanted. And in many cases there are no realistic solutions. The ugly fact continues despite almost universal agreement that it is ugly. This much is certain that there is no evidence in the whole of human history that any race or even nation has been forced by any means to love another race or nation.

Education has done much in the United States to lessen racial prejudice, but not enough to eliminate the problem. For instance, a Jew in New York can be on the most intimate terms with certain men; they may be his close business associates and they may see each other every day and dine in each other's homes, but it is impossible for that Jew to become a member of the club to which, let us say, all of his intimate friends belong. They will advise him not to permit his name to be presented. There is always someone who will exercise the right of blackball on a racial issue. His own sense of superiority requires him to do it. He faces no particular problem; He expresses an inherited and inherent prejudice.

While in practical terms this is meaningless, it represents the same form of racial antagonism which has caused all the trouble in Alabama where, am I told by those who should know better, gradualism was making significant progress. Gradualism means that Negroes and whites of good will sit down to find solutions for such problems as they can solve; they postpone other problems to subsequent meetings.

Of course, it does happen that some problems can never be solved at a meeting. One of them is intermarriage against which every group has rigid taboos. I was recently in conversation with a Catholic girl whose boy is Jewish and they want to get married. His mother objects to his choice. So they are having a tough time.

As all social relations have their own purpose in marriage, the question of intermarriage looms large in the development of any type of prejudice. There should be enough knowledge in the world that racial purity is a myth; that as we are only beginning to learn about racial origins and migrations, it is very difficult to trace ancestry back far enough on all sides to know exactly what it is and that the genes determine what we are and we know not where our particular genes originated.

But knowing that is like learning calculus; you remember it long enough to pass an examination and then go along with your prejudices. The Turks are still concerned about their possible descent from the Hittites, which may be interesting, but what does it prove? Is my Welsh wife pure Celt or was there a Phoenician influence four thousand years ago? Who knows and what difference can it make?

These arguments are not sound because they are unavailing. The prejudices continue even among the literate, even among men of good will. The human race does not function rationally; it is emotional, excitable, with loves and hatreds that make no sense but exist.

The conservative recognizes that the changes that are most effective are those which by slow processes affect the reason. He fears the consequences of emotional responses to public questions; they usually produce the opposite of what was anticipated, and the opposite is most often ugly. Revolutions designed to produce equality usually produce a dictatorship; the cure is often worse than the disease.

IN WASHINGTON

Truman's History

Harry S. Truman's own version of history during 1946-52, subtitled "Years of Trial and Hope," tells the story of his presidency in those years as he saw it. Like many other records put on paper with ten years of their occurrence, their accuracy has been questioned.

So far at least five Americans of standing have challenged Truman's recollection of what happened with respect to themselves during his term as president. They are Bernard Baruch, General Patrick Hurley, General Albert C. Wedemeyer, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. In addition, Walter S. Robertson, assistant Secretary of State and one of our qualified experts on China has added his dissent on the blame which the former president has heaped on Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for the loss of China to the Communists.

Their comments leave room for doubt that Truman's assumption of infallibility is justified. MacArthur's reply to the Truman account of the general's dismissal, already summarized by this columnist, gives a distinct impression.

But whenever 2 people are together, anything may happen, from love to murder, sexual assault to kidnapping.

Thus, quote marks denote the utmost in dramatic possibilities. It would be well if more scientists utilized these modern rules of print psychology to "pep up" the appearance of their scholarly papers.

"Dress up" often spells the difference between red ink and success in modern merchandising.

So "dress up" your copy. It increases readership as well as advertising results.

For further advice, send for my booklet "How to Write Saleable Copy," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Fellow scientists, please take note! For our scientific journals often look so dull that even we scientists must force ourselves to read them!

Army Private Released From Red Captivity

BERLIN, Feb. 17 (AP)—U.S. Army Pvt. Sidney Ray Sparks, 23, of Tonawanda, N.Y., was released from four years of Russian captivity today. He was turned over to Army authorities in East Berlin.

Sparks had escaped with two other privates Dec. 4, 1951, from a West Berlin guardhouse. He was being held to face charges of being AWOL, stealing money and assaulting a German cab driver.

Three days after the escape, East German Communist authorities said the trio had sought political asylum. But Austrian prisoners returning from Russian labor camps last June said they had seen Sparks in a Soviet camp. They said he told them the Soviets arrested him in Berlin in 1951.

Sparks' mother Mrs. J. W. Gladin lives at Tonawanda. The two men who escaped to the East with Sparks were Ray B. Schultz of Batavia, N.Y., and Charles J. Scott, Decatur, Ill.

Schultz returned from East Germany in June 1952. He was court-martialed, given a dishonorable discharge and sentenced to five years in prison. Scott has not been heard from since his flight.

An Army spokesman said Sparks would remain in confinement "pending disposition of his case."

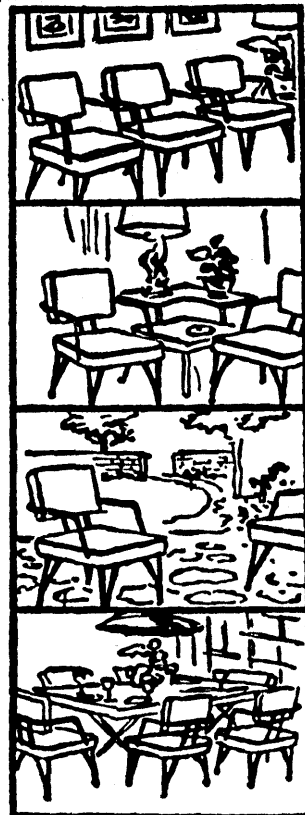

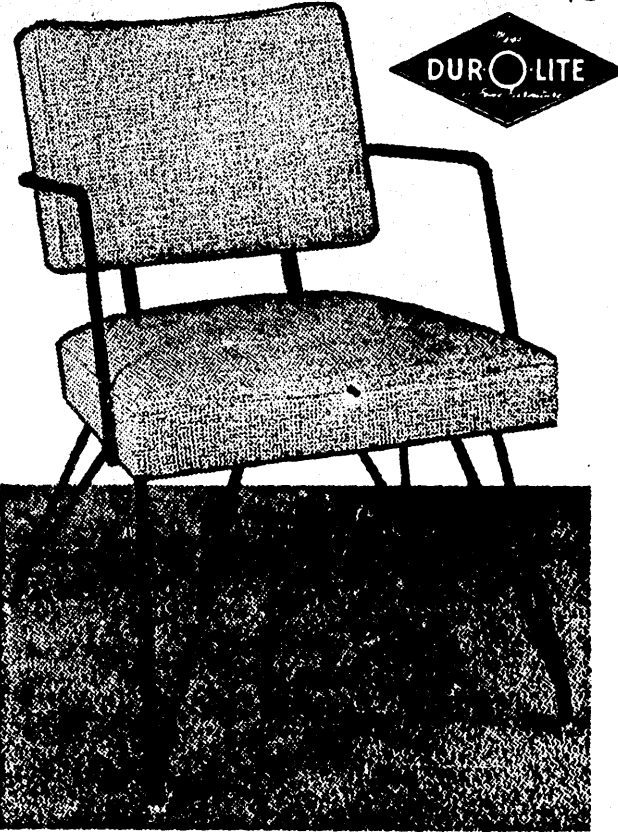

When Schultz returned to West Berlin he said he and his two companions had signed detection statements on the promise of a Soviet officer that they would be released. Instead, Schultz testified, they were confined, accused of being spies and threatened with being sent to Siberia.

Two Garden Clubs Hear Talk On Plant Rooting

The Patio Garden Club and the Town and Country Garden Club held a joint meeting at the United Gas building.

Mrs. James Moore opened the meeting and welcomed members of both clubs.

Mrs. Lon Heuer introduced C. G. Hobgood, head of the department of Agronomy and horticulture at Louisiana Tech, who spoke on rooting and propagation of plants.

He stressed the value of rooting since rooting is more successful than planting by seeds. Mr. Hobgood pointed out that plants grown from seed often lose their exactness of color.

He pointed out that some plants root from recent growth, while others, such as camellias and sasanquas. He explained that azaleas need last year's wood to grow.

Since St. Augustine grass is popular in this part of the country, Mr. Hobgood talked on its rooting and planting pointing out that short-cuttings of the grass have a better chance to live.

In the discussion the speaker listed the most successful cultures in which to root plants as sand, turmeric, peat moss, a mixture of sand and peat moss, water, or in a flower bed or cutting box. He reminded gardeners that in rooting a plant there is ninety per cent more success if the plant is put in the ground at a forty-five degree angle.

A discussion of general gardening followed the talk.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Grant Boardman, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Atkinson, Mrs. William Inabnet, Mrs. Bill Parker, Mrs. Jack McCook, Mrs. O. B. Frazier, Mrs. Fred Huenfeld, Jr., Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Jr., Mrs. Burchall Liles, Mrs. N. Klam, Mrs. Charles Amman, Mrs. Harry Bell, Mrs. Charles McKenzie, Jr., Mrs. David Garrett, Jr., Mrs. James Moore, Mrs. Lon Heuer.

Also, Mrs. Leo Terzia, Jr., Mrs. Louis Milner, Jr., Mrs. Harry Stone, Mrs. Fred Frazier, Mrs. Bob Clay, Mrs. John Clay, Mrs. Bob Carter, Mrs. Bobby Pipes and Mrs. Robert Oliver.

Two Garden Clubs Hear Talk On Plant Rooting

The Patio Garden Club and the Town and Country Garden Club held a joint meeting at the United Gas building.

Mrs. James Moore opened the meeting and welcomed members of both clubs.

Mrs. Lon Heuer introduced C. G. Hobgood, head of the department of Agronomy and horticulture at Louisiana Tech, who spoke on rooting and propagation of plants.

He stressed the value of rooting since rooting is more successful than planting by seeds. Mr. Hobgood pointed out that plants grown from seed often lose their exactness of color.

He pointed out that some plants root from recent growth, while others, such as camellias and sasanquas. He explained that azaleas need last year's wood to grow.

Since St. Augustine grass is popular in this part of the country, Mr. Hobgood talked on its rooting and planting pointing out that shorter cuttings of the grass have a better chance to live.

In the discussion the speaker listed the most successful cultures in which to root plants as sand, turmeric, peat moss, a mixture of sand and peat moss, water, or in a flower bed or cutting box. He reminded gardeners that in rooting a plant there is ninety per cent more success if the plant is put in the ground at a forty-five degree angle.

A discussion of general gardening followed the talk.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Grant Boardman, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Atkinson, Mrs. William Inabnet, Mrs. Bill Parker, Mrs. Jack McCook, Mrs. O. B. Frazier, Mrs. Fred Huenfeld, Jr., Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Jr., Mrs. Burchall Liles, Mrs. N. Klam, Mrs. Charles Amman, Mrs. Harry Bell, Mrs. Charles McKenzie, Jr., Mrs. David Garrett, Jr., Mrs. James Moore, Mrs. Lon Heuer.

Also, Mrs. Leo Terzia, Jr., Mrs. Louis Milner, Jr., Mrs. Harry Stone, Mrs. Fred Frazier, Mrs. Bob Clay, Mrs. John Clay, Mrs. Bob Carter, Mrs. Bobby Pipes and Mrs. Robert Oliver.

Vitamin C Great Health Aid, Especially For Older Folks

There have been many very interesting studies concerning the role vitamin C plays in health and especially its effect on those in the older age groups.

Many of these studies have been reported in medical journals. Last year Geriatrics published some results of some interesting ones. Today let me bring you a few of the ideas which they have established.

In the first place elderly people have a low vitamin C blood level. It may be that they are not getting enough vitamin C in their food or that it is being lost in preparation. At any rate it is beginning to look as though the older we get the more important our daily intake of this vitamin is.

Although there have been no dramatic effects from large doses of vitamin C on arthritis there have been noticeable results. There was little change in the swelling but the joints were much less painful. What could be more important?

In some instances muscle strength seemed to improve after patients with multiple sclerosis drank four glasses of orange juice.

Student Council Gives Wedding

The Student Council of the Oak Ridge High School sponsored a Tom Thumb Wedding at the school house Friday night. Pre-school and primary children dressed in frock tail suits and formal gowns for the occasion.

Clint Shepard served as minister.

Proceeding the ceremony, Lavell Jones sang, "I Love You Truly." Miss Susan Smith accompanied him on the piano. Ushers were Mason McEnery, Fred Parks, Lavell Jones and Andy Barham. Bridesmaids were Pat Gregory, Marva Norman, Jane Garner and Sandra Garne. Their frocks were pink and blue. The maid of honor, Evelyn Lawson, was gowned in yellow.

The bride, Marilyn Rose Williams, entered with her father, Philip Williams. Dottie McEnery and Phyllis Chunn were flower girls. Annette Williams and Jim Poole were ring bearers. Carolyn Files carried the bride's train.

In the cast as guests were: Kathleen Williams, Mack Barham, Millicent Parks, Mildred and Rush Loughridge, Maglene and Roy Stanley, Linda Stanley, Lois and Margaret Tibbary, Mary A. Files, Neil Mott, Camilla Cabuk, Chandler Barham, Markay Stevenson, Joe Rolfe, Tommy Watson and Robert Barham.

Nancy Files and Roxie Greene were in charge of the production, and took 400 mg. of vitamin C daily for four months.

The recommended daily dosages of vitamin C is 70 mg. for men and 75 for women at present, although some authorities feel that 10 to 25 times that much may be needed in certain diseases or disabilities.

All of this and much more information goes to show that we DO require a daily and adequate amount of this vitamin for health and that we should probably increase our intake as we grow older, depending on what our physician advises.

The citrus fruits or fruit juices are the richest and most reliable sources. It has been found that concentrated frozen orange juice retains about 98 per cent of its vitamin C content. Grapefruit juice retains about 97 per cent so that these are just as valuable as fresh orange juice.

Must Be Some Characters On This Reader's Street!

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: Kindly send me your leaflet D-10, Neighbor(e)s. And of course, to me it's obvious what the "D" stands for. A. G.

ANSWER: Oh, come now, they're not all that bad! In fact, some neighbors can be very charming. Or perhaps I'm just very fortunate in living in a neighborhood where they are. Perhaps it's just a fortuitous circumstance. At any rate, I hope the leaflet helps.

daughter happy?

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a mother of an only child, a girl of 14. Pam considers herself old enough to go to afternoon movies with boys her own age. Since all her girl friends have been dating for the last year, they tease her constantly about not dating and she winds up in tears. I feel she is old enough to date on afternoons, but my husband simply says no! He claims she is too young even to think about boys. Please tell me who is right. If I am, how can I convince my quick-tempered husband that I am only trying to make my daughter happy?

ANSWER: Your husband is a typical father of a teen-age daughter. Men absolutely refuse to admit that their little girls are growing up and, by denying dating privileges, expect to keep them docile children forever. His frantic stubbornness is further shown in the declaration that she's too young even to think of boys. Well, who can control the thoughts of the young? He may think she's not thinking of boys but my, oh my, little does he suspect how long such things have been going on! How old was he when he first thought of girls?

For his further enlightenment, I would suggest that he read a few books on adolescence. Dorothy Baruch's "How to Live With Your Teen-Ager" (McGraw-Hill, New York) would be a good starter.

Incidentally, going to afternoon movies is a very sensible introduction to dating. You're wise to permit it, and Pam is smart to be satisfied with the program. Now let's get Dad into the act.

WHAT NAME?

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister-in-law has a baby named Betty Sue. When she was born they agreed to call her Betty, which I did. Now, a few months later, they have decided to call her Sue. Since I have formed the habit of using the former name, it's hard to change and every time I address the baby as Betty, my sister-in-law gets mad. Doris

ANSWER: And well she might. After all, it's a parent's privilege to decide what name a child shall have. Habits are so difficult to change and this one hasn't had time to become fully formed. Do co-operate.

DEAR MISS DIX: I like a young man who is 25, five years older than I. He is very shy and, though I'm told by mutual friends that he would like to date me, he's afraid. I can't come right out and ask him for fear he'll think I'm chasing. Could I send him a birthday card? O. N.

ANSWER: This is leap year, my dear, the gift of Father Time to young girls with shy beauty. Make the most of it.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX, care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Ala. University Sophomore Heads Citizens' Council

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 17—UP—A sophomore student took the leadership of a pro-segregation citizens' council Friday to "meet the challenge" of a Negro coed's enrollment at the University of Alabama.

Leonard Wilson, a 19-year-old pre-law student from Selma, Ala., became temporary chairman of the group and called a meeting at the Tuscaloosa county courthouse Friday night to map plans.

The citizens' council movement has snarled into Alabama from Mississippi, where 75,000 to 80,000 members are claimed including U. S. Sen. James O. Eastland and Rep. John Bell Williams.

The councils have vowed unflinching opposition to integration of the races in schools or elsewhere and have brought economic pressure to bear on Negroes and whites alike who advocate mixing. The CIO-AFL executive council last week called the groups "the Ku Klux Klan without hoods" and said several governors as well as congressmen are members.

Another meeting was held at Montgomery Friday to weld various independent groups into the "Citizens' Councils of Alabama."

Sophomore Wilson has been an outspoken leader of segregation forces on the Alabama campus from which Autherine Lucy, 23, the institution's first Negro student, was suspended Feb. 6 at the height of rioting. The Negro was the target of rocks and eggs and the university suspended her for safety reasons. But Lucy charged in a court suit for readmission the next day that this was only a pretext to bar her because of her race.

Wilson took exception to University President O. C. Carmichael's statement to students Thursday that the issue is law and order versus anarchy.

"The issue is segregation," Wilson said. "If Autherine Lucy had not come here in the first place there would have been no violence."

He said the challenge would be met through the citizens council. The university had no official comment on Wilson's role in the council movement. "This is a new development we weren't expecting," one official said.

Trans-Texas Air Route Sought To Untouched Towns

John B. Fleming, of Shreveport, district sales manager of Trans-Texas Airways, said here Friday that his company had filed application with the Civil Aeronautics Board for a new route grant from Beaumont - Port Arthur to Alexandria and Monroe.

R. E. McKaughan, president of Trans-Texas Airways, said "we believe our application is unique in that we are applying for a route that not only will give Monroe, Alexandria, Lake Charles, Beaumont and Port Arthur service to Houston, but to El Dorado and Little Rock as well."

Fleming said that Trans-Texas Airways more than six years ago made an application to the C.A.B. to give service to Alexandria and Monroe with a terminal in Houston, Tex.

Fleming asserted "It is my conviction, because of the economic growth of this community and the need for a third carrier or air line that Monroe is entitled to a new and additional service to new markets. Trans-Texas Airways has been operating since October 11, 1947 and now has more than 4,000 air line route miles and operates 16 DC 3's."

Since Trans-Texas Airways went into operation the company has not had a fatality, Fleming said.

The president of the company said that Trans-Texas is equipped to provide service promptly on grant from the C. A. B.

Oil And Gas News

Application For Madison Wildcat Venture Filed

An application to drill a wildcat approximately eight miles north of a wildcat now drilling and about seven miles northeast of the east end of the Delhi field was filed yesterday with the Monroe District office of the State of Louisiana Department of Conservation.

The new wildcat stake is the California Co. E. Sondheimer Co., 4 No. 1, in the center of the SW SW of Sec. 2-17-11E, Madison parish. Approximately eight miles due south, the California Co. Singer Manufacturing Co. No. 3, Sec. 14-16-11E, is drilling below 400 feet. The Sondheimer test is scheduled for 4,000 feet with H. L. Rowley the contractor.

Stock Market Surges Upward

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—The stock market took President Eisenhower's veto of the natural gas bill in its stride today and racked up its biggest advance on average in nearly five months.

Higher from the start, the market really went to town in the last half hour. Earlier gains ranging to about 2 points were stretched to around 5 points or more.

The fact that the presidential veto had only a passing effect, and that only on the stocks of companies directly involved, was taken as an encouraging sign. These stocks faltered, lost ground, then most of them recovered.

The legislation would have freed independent producers from federal curbs.

As the gas and oil stocks came back, a surge of optimism spread. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced $2.80 to $177.30 for its best rise since Sept. 27—the recovery after the first "blue Monday" following Eisenhower's heart attack.

The industrials were up $4.40, the rails $2.70 and the utilities 40 cents.

Volume totaled 2,840,000 shares compared with 1,750,000 yesterday. Of 1,163 issues traded there were 742 advances and 223 declines.

There were 25 new 1955-56 highs and 7 new lows.

Corporate bonds were higher.

U. S. treasury obligations declined in over-the-counter trading.

The gentleness of most sled dogs surprises many tenderfeet.

Orleans Official Claims Error In Gas Tax Formula

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17 (AP)—The city's chief administrative officer said today he believes New Orleans has been "inadvertently short-changed" in distribution of the state's one cent gasoline tax funds.

Under a new formula, New Orleans will lose between $350,000 and $400,000 yearly. The city's share of the tax would drop that much.

Administrative officer David McGuire said it is possible that incomplete reporting on gasoline consumption in Orleans Parish may account for the decrease.

McGuire said he will ask State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell and State Revenue Collector Rufus Fontenot to review their calculations in the hope the money may be restored.

He said it was also possible the decrease may have resulted from administration of the formula and that this can be corrected.

The port of Bremen is 54 miles from the sea.

and took 400 mg. of vitamin C daily for four months.

The recommended daily dosages of vitamin C is 70 mg. for men and 75 for women at present, although some authorities feel that 10 to 25 times that much may be needed in certain diseases or disabilities.

All of this and much more information goes to show that we DO require a daily and adequate amount of this vitamin for health and that we should probably increase our intake as we grow older, depending on what our physician advises.

The citrus fruits or fruit juices are the richest and most reliable sources. It has been found that concentrated frozen orange juice retains about 98 per cent of its vitamin C content. Grapefruit juice retains about 97 per cent so that these are just as valuable as fresh orange juice.

Must Be Some Characters On This Reader's Street!

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: Kindly send me your leaflet D-10, Neighbor(e)s. And of course, to me it's obvious what the "D" stands for.

ANSWER: Oh, come now, they're not all that bad! In fact, some neighbors can be very charming. Or perhaps I'm just very fortunate in living in a neighborhood where they are. Perhaps it's just a fortuitous circumstance. At any rate, I hope the leaflet helps.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a mother of an only child, a girl of 14. Pam considers herself old enough to go to afternoon movies with boys her own age. Since all her girl friends have been dating for the last year they tease her constantly about not dating and she winds up in tears. I feel she is old enough to date on afternoons, but my husband simply says no! He claims she is too young even to think about boys. Please tell me who is right. If I am, how can I convince my quick-tempered husband that I am only trying to make my daughter happy?

ANSWER: Your husband is a typical father of a teen-age daughter. Men absolutely refuse to admit that their little girls are growing up and, by denying dating privileges, expect to keep them docile children forever. His frantic stubbornness is further shown in the declaration that she's too young even to think of boys. Well, who can control the thoughts of the young? He may think she's not thinking of boys but my, oh my, little does he suspect how long such things have been going on! How old was he when he first thought of girls?

For his further enlightenment, I would suggest that he read a few books on adolescence. Dorothy Baruch's "How to Live With Your Teen-Ager" (McGraw-Hill, New York) would be a good starter.

Incidentally, going to afternoon movies is a very sensible introduction to dating. You're wise to permit it, and Pam is smart to be satisfied with the program. Now let's get Dad into the act.

WHAT NAME?

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister-in-law has a baby named Betty Sue. When she was born they agreed to call her Betty, which I did. Now, a few months later, they have decided to call her Sue. Since I have formed the habit of using the former name, it's hard to change and every time I address the baby as Betty, my sister-in-law gets mad.

ANSWER: And well she might. After all, it's a parent's privilege to decide what name a child shall have. Habits aren't so difficult to change and this one hasn't had time to become fully formed. Do co-operate.

DEAR MISS DIX: I like a young man who is 25, five years older than I. He is very shy and, though I'm told by mutual friends that he would like to date me, he's afraid. I can't come right out and ask him for fear he'll think I'm chasing. Could I send him a birthday card?

ANSWER: This is leap year, my dear, the gift of Father Time to young girls with shy beaux. Make the most of it.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX, care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Stock Market Surges Upward

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP) — The stock market took President Eisenhower's veto of the natural gas bill in its stride today and racked up its biggest advance on average in nearly five months.

Higher from the start, the market really went to town in the last half hour. Earlier gains ranging to about 2 points were stretched to around 5 points or more.

The fact that the presidential veto had only a passing effect, and that only on the stocks of companies directly involved, was taken as an encouraging sign. These stocks faltered, lost ground, then most of them recovered.

The legislation would have freed independent producers from federal curbs.

As the gas and oil stocks came back, a surge of optimism spread. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced $2.80 to $177.30 for its best rise since Sept. 27—the recovery after the first "blue Monday" following Eisenhower's heart attack.

The industrials were up $4.40, the rails $2.70 and the utilities 40 cents. Volume totaled 2,840,000 shares compared with 1,750,000 yesterday. Of 1,163 issues traded there were 742 advances and 223 declines. There were 25 new 1955-56 highs and 7 new lows.

Corporate bonds were higher. U.S. treasury obligations declined in over-the-counter trading.

Orleans Official Claims Error In Gas Tax Formula

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17 (AP) — The city's chief administrative officer said today he believes New Orleans has been "inadvertently short-changed" in distribution of the state's one cent gasoline tax funds.

Under a new formula, New Orleans will lose between $350,000 and $400,000 yearly. The city's share of the tax would drop that much.

Administrative officer David McGuire said it is possible that incomplete reporting on gasoline consumption in Orleans Parish may account for the decrease.

McGuire said he will ask State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell and State Revenue Collector Rufus Fontenot to review their calculations in the hope the money may be restored.

He said it was also possible the decrease may have resulted from administration of the formula and that this can be corrected.

Ala. University
Sophomore Heads
Citizens' Council

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 17—UP—A sophomore student took the leadership of a pro-segregation citizens' council Friday to "meet the challenge" of a Negro coed's enrollment at the University of Alabama.

Leonard Wilson, a 19-year-old pre-law student from Selma, Ala., became temporary chairman of the group and called a meeting at the Tuscaloosa county courthouse Friday night to map plans.

The citizens council movement has spilled into Alabama from Mississippi, where 75,000 to 80,000 members are claimed including U. S. Sen. James O. Eastland and Rep. John Bell Williams.

The councils have vowed unflinching opposition to integration of the races in schools or elsewhere and have brought economic pressure to bear on Negroes and whites alike who advocate mixing. The CIO-AFL executive council last week called the groups "the Ku Klux Klan without hoods" and said several governors as well as congressmen are members.

Another meeting was held at Montgomery Friday to weld various independent groups into the "Citizens' Councils of Alabama."

Sophomore Wilson has been an outspoken leader of segregation forces on the Alabama campus from which Autherine Lucy, 26, the institution's first Negro student, was suspended Feb. 6 at the height of rioting. The Negro was the target of rocks and eggs and the university suspended her for safety reasons. But Lucy charged in a court suit for readmission the next day that this was only a pretext to bar her because of her race.

Wilson took exception to University President O. C. Carmichael's statement to students Thursday that the issue is law and order versus anarchy.

"The issue is segregation," Wilson said. "If Autherine Lucy had not come here in the first place there would have been no violence."

He said the challenge would be met through the citizens council. The university had no official comment on Wilson's role in the council movement. "This is a new development we weren't expecting," one official said.

Trans-Texas Air
Route Sought To Untouched Towns

John B. Fleming, of Shreveport, district sales manager of Trans-Texas Airways, said here Friday that his company had filed application with the Civil Aeronautics Board for a new route grant from Beaumont - Port Arthur to Alexandria and Monroe.

R. E. McKaughan, president of Trans-Texas Airways, said "we believe our application is unique in that we are applying for a route that not only will give Monroe, Alexandria, Lake Charles, Beaumont and Port Arthur service to Houston, but to El Dorado and Little Rock as well."

Fleming said that Trans-Texas Airways more than six years ago made an application to the C.A.B. to give service to Alexandria and Monroe with a terminal in Houston, Tex.

Fleming asserted "It is my conviction, because of the economic growth of this community and the need for a third carrier or air line, that Monroe is entitled to a new and additional service to new markets. Trans-Texas Airways has been operating since October 11, 1947 and now has more than 4,000 air line route miles and operates 16 DC 3's."

Since Trans-Texas Airways went into operation the company has not had a fatality, Fleming said.

The president of the company said that Trans-Texas is equipped to provide service promptly on grant from the C. A. B.

Vessels Joins Colts, Strains Pro Grid Peace Talk

Canadians Claim Baltimore's Act Ends Agreement

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP) — The improved relations between the National Football League and the Canadian pros were ruffled today when the Baltimore Colts announced they had signed Billy Vessels, a former Oklahoma star who has been playing in Canada.

M. J. Lieberman, president of the Edmonton Eskimo team with which Vessels played, announced the move could end the "peaceful co-existence pact with the National Football League."

Lieberman acknowledged that the former All-America halfback was a free agent since his contract with Edmonton had expired, but he said he had an agreement with N.F.L. clubs to honor their rights to return him.

Vessels, who joined Edmonton after winning All-America halfback honors at Oklahoma in 1952, played one season for the Canadian before entering the U.S. army as a lieutenant. He gets out of service in June.

Reet Bell, president of the N.F.L. and Ralph Cooner, chairman of the Canadian Football Council, held a "peace meeting" Wednesday in Philadelphia and agreed in principle on several problems.

Both said there was nothing they could do about players not under contract or option to either league. But they agreed to recognize existing contracts and options.

Lieberman obviously upset by the development, said:

"We could have picked up a couple of their N.F.L. players in the last couple of months. But we kept faith with the N.F.L. as we always have done. Reet Bell had promised to support us in the Vessels case but I think he now is under pressure from the N.F.L. club owners."

"This could definitely cause a shift in attitude toward the N.F.L."

Vessels, who made the All-American team in 1954 but played only three games last year because of a knee injury, informed the Colts that his knee now is perfectly sound.

He was voted Canada's outstanding player in 1953, winning a trophy and a $1,000 special award. He scored ten touchdowns and averaged 7.1 yards per carry.

Lieberman said Vessels was under no contract or option to Edmonton. The commissioner said he had seen Vessels' Edmonton contract and it was for three years without any option. He said he told Sydney Haber, commissioner of the Western Provincial League, that he could not release a Baltimore contract with Vessels if the Colts presented one.

Bell said Vessels was under no contract or option to Baltimore and Vessels.

"Lieberman would put us in the position of telling a boy who has no contract or option, not to go back to Canada. We can't take up the problem of controlling their players. They'll have to do it themselves," Bell said.

"Furthermore," Bell said, "during this year have signed not only players in service who were under option to N.F.L. teams, but players who held N.F.L. contracts in just to them. I don't think they are going to leave a player already under contract to go."

"Take the case of Paul Cameron, for example. Cameron played for Pittsburgh in 1954, and a month after the season was over he went into service. Before he left the Pittsburgh club, Cameron had a $9,000 advance on his salary. A Canadian team signed him out of the service."

Bell went on:

"They seem to forget that they started this thing. We didn't set up there to keep players. If they want to keep it up that's all right with the National Football League."

Sports' Ticket Sales Lagging; 12 Days To Goal

The Twin Cities Sports' advanced season ticket sale is lagging behind the goal of 1,000 book sales by March 1, an official of the Sports said yesterday. Although the sale "spurred" at times, the drive has yet to reach the desired goal with just 12 more days to go before the March deadline for the special priced prices books.

Although there are many salesmen at work on this project, and in spite of constant reminders in the press, radio and television, the progress is still not up to par.

Tickets are being sold by all of the members of the Sports board of directors, many civic clubs and by other interested baseball fans.

They may also be purchased at Adler Tire Company, 201 South Grand Street; Fink's on DeSard Street; and Feeders Supply Company, 513 Trenton street, West Monroe. If desired, they may be ordered by phone at either 3-8805 or 3-9461.

Prices are grandstand, $25 plus tax; bleachers, $17.50 and box seats of four, $50. Boxes have been in heavy demand, and it is asked that former owners re-purchase them as soon as possible, if desired. These prices include ten more home games than were scheduled last season in the now defunct Cotton States League. The Evangeline League schedules 70 home contests instead of the 60 as was the case last year.

Nashua Solid 1-2 Choice To Take Widener's Cash

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—Nashua, the millionaire race horse makes his debut as a 4-year-old in tomorrow's $129,800 Widener Handicap at Hialeah and is 1 to 2 favorite to whip eight others in the mile and a quarter feature.

Nashua will carry top weight of 127 pounds, most of it his regular rider, Eddie Arcaro, and will be giving away from 5 to 22 pounds to his rivals, a band of seasoned campaigners.

Chief opposition to Nashua is expected from the powerful entry of Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Social Outcast and Flnd, rated 7 to 2 in the year line. Social outcast will carry 121 pounds, including jockey

7 Olympic Title Holders Compete In A.A.U. Event

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—UP—At least seven Olympic champions will appear in Saturday night's national AAU indoor track and field championships but Arnie Sowell and Charley Jenkins, who never have taken part in the international games, figure to provide the big thrills for Madison Square Garden fans.

Sowell, the 135-pound Pitt star who appears to float around the track, will try to gain sole possession of the indoor 1,000-yard record he now shares with Don Gehrmann, former Wisconsin runner.

Sowell matched Gehrmann's world mark of two minutes, 08.2 seconds while winning the AAU 1,000 last year. Sowell figures he can better that time Saturday night.

Joe Deady, former Georgetown runner who set an indoor mark of 3:01.2 for three-quarters of a mile earlier this season, is in the race and sets the kind of a fast early pace that should help the slender Pitt runner to reach his evening's goal.

Jenkins, the Villanova flash who lowered the world indoor 500-yard standard to 56.4 seconds last week during the New York Athletic Club meet, heads the field in the 600-yard run.

Tom Courtney, the former Fordham runner who apparently is tired chasing Sowell, has switched from the 1,000 to the 600 and probably will provide Jenkins' top opposition. The indoor 600 record of 1:09.5 is held by Mal Whitfield, Whitfield, two-time Olympic 800-meter champion, and Lou Jones, world 400-meter record holder, also are in the 600 field.

Besides Whitfield, other Olympic champions in the meet are Harrison Dillard, Horace Ashenfelter, Harry O'Brien, Bob Richards, Andy Stanfield and Lindy Remington.

Jenkins Figure Skates For 4th World's Crown

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCH, EN, Germany, Feb. 17 (AP)—Olympic and world champion Hayes Alan Jenkins skated and danced his swan song in international competition tonight to win his fourth consecutive world figure skating title.

Except for a minor slip, which apparently meant nothing to the nine judges, the quiet and intense student from Colorado College put on a near perfect free skating performance.

His great competitor, Ronnie Robertson of Long Beach, Calif., followed him with a more spectacular but far less artistic five minutes on the ice.

Robertson actually outscored Jenkins in the free figures, but the defending champion's lead which he built up yesterday in school figures easily saw him through to the title again. School figures count for 60 per cent in the total scoring and the free skating 40 per cent.

Meanwhile Tenley Albright of Newton Center, Mass., also a world and Olympic champion, barely held the lead over her intense rival, Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N.Y., after the completion of four school figures in the women's competition.

No results were given out in the women's event, but unofficial scorers gave Miss Albright a narrow margin. Tenley also had a close call when a big piece of ice cracked away from under her skate as she executed the first figure and she almost lost her balance.

Jenkins, who had announced earlier that this was his last season of competitive international skating, stumbled and fell once. He was skating almost in a straight line when his skate apparently caught a rut in the brittle ice. His difficult, showy program included a great double lutz, a double axel and his "flying sit spin."

Jenkins left the ice with a finger on his left hand almost frozen, but massage and exercise enabled him to move it again.

Robertson drew one perfect scoring point of six and every judge placed him first in free skating. Jenkins' score cards showed a series of 5.7 and 5.8 tallies, but his margin in the school figures was enough to win.

David Jenkins, younger brother of the champion, was third to give the United States a 1-2-3 placing which matched the Olympic performance at Cortina D'Ampezzo.

Eric Guerin, while Flnd goes under 114 pounds, with Ted Atkinson up.

Some observers believe Flnd will go after Nashua from the start and try to wear down the favorite for one of Social Outcast's stretch runs.

Third choice probably will be Brookmeade stable's Sailor, under 119 pounds with Willie Hartack last year's champion jockey, in the irons.

Next comes Hasty House farm's double entry of Sea O Erin, who likes the mud, and Prince Noor, Hedley Woodhouse, who was second four times in the Widener, will ride Sea O Erin, and John Adams, the balding grandfather, has the mount on Prince Noor.

El Chama, the Venezuelan champion, is assigned equal weight with Social Outcast of 121 pounds and will be ridden by his regular jockey, Raul Bustamante.

Trainer Jack Labelle said Nashua can do anything better than his horse and he is aiming for second money of $20,000.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Man of Destiny gets in with 105 pounds, Steve Brooks riding.

A surprise entry was Spring Hill farm's Jamie K., owned by the International Boxing Club president, James D. Norris. Jamie K., will carry 105 pounds, with Logan Batchelder aboard. As a 3-year-old Jamie K. was known as Native Dancer's shadow, losing neck decisions to the Vanderbilt gray in the Preakness and Belmont stakes.

Good weather was forecast, with a high of around 75 degrees, and a fast track. It will be partly cloudy with no rain in prospect.

It will be Nashua's first start since Oct. 15, when he won the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park, but the big bay has worked brilliantly, covering a mile and a quarter at Tropical Park in 2:01.45 in a Tuesday trial spin.

Santee's Lawyer Delivers Threat Of Investigation

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—UP—Counsel for Wes Santee Friday demanded a public trial for the ace American miler who is expected to be suspended Sunday on professionalism charges and threatened a federal investigation of both the AAU and the U. S. Olympic committee.

Charles P. Grimes, attorney for Santee, Friday invaded the AAU offices in an attempt to obtain records of the committee which is investigating charges that the 4:00.5 miler received excessive expenses. He didn't get beyond the reception desk, being told that National Secretary Dan Ferris was "not available."

Asserting that Santee was "guilty of nothing," Grimes reiterated that the Marine lieutenant had been cleared of the professionalism charges by the Missouri Valley AAU Association last November and that he would attempt to be heard by the AAU executive committee Sunday before it makes its decision in the case.

Grimes said that "if there is new evidence" and Santee is suspended permanently he would amend: A public trial; Santee's right to counsel; Santee's right to be confronted by his accusers, and the admission only of legal evidence "and not common report, hearsay and rumor."

As the Marine Corps meanwhile separated itself from the case on grounds that "Marines who desire legal representation on private matters must engage their own counsel," Grimes also challenged the legality of both the AAU and the U. S. Olympic committee.

The attorney said he would suggest to interested House and Senate committees a federal investigation of both organizations.

Quast, Brown Duo Take Everglades Mixed Foursome

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—Anne Quast and J. Walcott Brown, strong favorites after the opening round, defeated Jane Nelson and William Hyndman today to win the Everglades Mixed Foursome Golf Tournament, 5 and 3.

They opened the round strongly, taking the first four holes and were never in danger. Miss Quast, Marysville, Wash., 18-year-old, played a steady game while Brown, a 53-year-old Manassan, N.J., banker, excelled at putting.

They led up with six holes to go but lost the 13th and 14th on trapped balls.

Hyndman, Philadelphia, fired in to a trap on the 15th hole and Miss Nelson, Indianapolis, drove out too strongly, the ball sailing over the green. Hyndman missed a putt attempt and conceded the match.

Brown has played in the finals of this tournament four times in five years but with different partners. He was on the winning team once previously.

Miss Quast, a co-ed at the University of Washington, is making her first tour of Florida.

The team was one over par for the 15 holes they played on the 6,248-yard Everglades Club course.

Bolt, Finsterwald, Palmer Share Tie For 36-Hole Lead

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 17—UP—Don Palmer, a 38-year-old greenskeeper from Dubuque, Iowa, and veterans Tommy Bolt and Dow Finsterwald were tied for a host of nearly six months as he captured the $15,000 Los Angeles County Fair Handicap by about two lengths.

The 1955 Kentucky Derby winner was shaken up but once by jockey Willie Shoemaker turning into the stretch and Swaps responded to pull away from Bobby Brocato who was second. Arrogate finished third and Joe Jones was fourth in the field of seven starters.

Swaps raced the mile and a sixteenth in the good time of 1:43.14 and demonstrated that he would be a tough horse to beat in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 25.

Despite his long absence from the races and his top impost of 127 pounds, Swaps was sent off the three to five favorite of the crowd of 21,500 racing fans. He returned $3.40, 2.80 and 2.20 across the board.

At the start Swaps broke alertly but Shoemaker made no effort to fight for the early lead as Ozbeg and Guerrero vied for the pacesetter's role. Bobby Brocato was third in the early stages and Swaps laid back in fourth position.

Swaps raced slightly wide in the early stages to avoid trouble and did not begin to make his move until going into the final turn. By that time the pace-setters started to fade and Bobby Brocato carrying second high impost of 124 pounds took the lead. But as they came around the turn Swaps was shaken up by Shoemaker and he moved up boldly on the leader.

Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, fired the day's best round, a 66, for a 139 total. Five others, Buster Cupit, Ruston, La., Walter Burkemo, Franklin, Mich.; Jack Burke Jr., Kiamnesia Lake, N. Y.; Joe Jimenez, Midlothian, Ill.; and Bill Ogden, Chicago, Ill.; were also tied for the fifth spot with Vossler.

For the second straight day the weathermen took a setback when the tournament was unreel in mild temperatures at Fort Sam Houston golf course instead of a cold and wet climate.

Par came easy for the professionals and only seven strokes separated the 67 professionals who qualified with 144 or better for the final rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Among those who couldn't make the 144 qualifying total was Ted Kroll, last week's winner at the Tucson Open. Others included Bob Toski, Billy Maxwell, Ed Furgol, Gardiner Dickinson, Ed Oliver and Wally Ulrich.

The leading amateurs were a 8, (AN Antonio products, British A teur champion Joe Conrad and Bobby Smith, each with 147s. Jim Tom Blair, the son of the Mississippi lieutenant governor who raised eyebrows at Tucson, had a 149 total.

'New Evidence' Reopens Hearing For Boxing Case

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—A decision on the fate of Promoter Tex Sullivan and his London sporting Club was delayed today when the New York State athletic commission and Sullivan's attorney agreed to re-open the Thursday to consider new evidence.

Julius Helfand, commission chairman, was expected to announce his verdict today but the case was re-opened to permit questions about "certain checks and documents" that have been submitted to the commission since the close of the formal hearings Jan. 25.

"A review of certain testimony by Sullivan is somewhat clouded by this new information," said Helfand. He said Bob Christenberry, the other member of the commission, had suggested the re-opening.

After examining the "certain checks and documents" for about an hour in a private conference with his client, Sullivan's lawyer, Francis W. H. Adams consented and even asked for a re-opening. Due to pressure of other business, Adams asked Helfand to delay the announced resumption from Monday to Thursday.

There was no hint of the ultimate decision from Helfand, who had charged Sullivan and Willie Gilzenberg, his former partner, with violating nine commission rules in operating their Monday night televised fights from St. Nicholas Arena. Gilzenberg had turned in his license as corporation treasurer and sold out to Sullivan Jan. 24 but Helfand refused to accept his resignation.

Sullivan and Gilzenberg had been charged with association with persons convicted of crime, bookmakers and persons of similar pursuit and of trying to move to Baltimore to "sabotage" the commission in its fight with the Boxing Guild of New York. Other charges included paying a fighter in cash instead of by check and dealing with a manager not licensed in New York.

The commission cleared two pre-fight fighters, Raynon Stubbs, of Pittsburgh and Rudy Gwin of Cleveland, of any wrong doing in last Friday's scheduled six-rounder at Madison Square Garden which was stopped by referee Al Lind and ruled "no contest" at 2:37 of the fourth.

Swaps Makes Comeback Success At Santa Anita

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 17—UP Swaps raced to a smashing comeback victory at Santa Anita after a layoff of nearly six months as he captured the $15,000 Los Angeles County Fair Handicap by about two lengths.

Nashua Solid 1-2 Choice To Take Widener's Cash

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—Nashua, the millionaire race horse, made his debut as a 4-year-old in tomorrow's $129,800 Widener Handicap at Hialeah and is 1 to 2 favorite to whip eight others in the mile and a quarter feature.

Nashua will carry top weight of 127 pounds, most of it his regular rider, Eddie Arcaro, and will be giving away from 5 to 22 pounds to his rivals — a band of seasoned campaigners.

Chief opposition to Nashua is expected from the powerful entry of Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Social Outcast and Find, rated 7 to 2 in the year line. Social outcast will carry 121 pounds, including jockey

7 Olympic Title Holders Compete In A.A.U. Event

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—UP—At least seven Olympic champions will appear in Saturday night's national A.A.U. indoor track and field championships but Arnie Sowell and Charley Jenkins, who never have taken part in the international games, figure to provide the big thrills for Madison Square Garden fans.

Sowell, the 135-pound Pitt star who appears to float around the track, will try to gain sole possession of the indoor 1,000-yard record he now shares with Don Gehrman, former Wisconsin runner.

Sowell matched Gehrman's world mark of two minutes, 08.2 seconds while winning the A.A.U. 1,000 last year. Sowell figures he can better that time Saturday night.

Joe Deady, former Georgetown runner who set an indoor mark of 3:01.2 for three-quarters of a mile earlier this season, is in the race and sets the kind of a fast early pace that should help the slender Pitt runner to reach his evening's goal.

Jenkins, the Villanova flash who lowered the world indoor 300-yard standard to 58.4 seconds last week during the New York Athletic Club meet, heads the field in the 600-yard run.

Tom Courtney, the former Fordham runner who apparently is tired chasing Sowell, has switched from the 1,000 to the 600 and probably will provide Jenkins' top opposition. The indoor 600 record of 1:09.5 is held by Mal Whitfield, Whitfield, two-time Olympic 800-meter champion, and Lou Jones, world 400-meter record holder, also are in the 600 field.

Besides Whitfield, other Olympic champions in the meet are Harrison Dillard, Horace Ashenfelter, Parry O'Brien, Bob Richards, Andy Stanfield and Lindy Remigino.

Jenkins Figure Skates For 4th World's Crown

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 17 (AP)—Olympic and world champion Hayes Alan Jenkins skated and danced his swan song in international competition tonight to win his fourth consecutive world figure skating title.

Except for a minor slip, which apparently meant nothing to the nine judges, the quiet and intense student from Colorado College put on a near perfect free skating performance.

His great competitor, Ronnie Robertson of Long Beach, Calif., followed him with a more spectacular but far less artistic five minutes on the ice.

Robertson actually outscored Jenkins in the free figures, but the defending champion's lead which he built up yesterday in school figures easily saw him through to the title again. School figures count for 60 per cent in the total scoring and the free skating 40 per cent.

Meanwhile Tenley Albright of Newton Center, Mass., also a world and Olympic champion, barely held the lead over her intense rival, Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N.Y., after the completion of four school figures in the women's competition.

No results were given out in the women's event, but unofficial scorers gave Miss Albright a narrow margin. Tenley also had a close call when a big piece of ice cracked away from under her skate as she executed the first figure and she almost lost her balance.

Jenkins, who had announced earlier that this was his last season of competitive international skating, stumbled and fell once. He was skating almost in a straight line when his skate apparently caught a rut in the brittle ice. His difficult, showy program included a great double lutz, a double axel and his "flying spin."

Jenkins left the ice with a finger on his left hand almost frozen, but massage and exercise enabled him to move it again.

Robertson drew one perfect scoring point of six and every judge placed him first in free skating. Jenkins' score cards showed a series of 5.7 and 5.8 tallies, but his margin in the school figures was enough to win.

David Jenkins, younger brother of the champion, was third to give the United States a 1-2-3 placing which matched the Olympic performance at Cortina D'Ampezzo.

Eric Guerin, while Find goes under 114 pounds, with Ted Atkinson up.

Some observers believe Find will go after Nashua from the start and try to wear down the favorite for one of Social Outcast's stretch runs.

Third choice probably will be Brookmeade stable's Sailor, under 119 pounds with Willie Hartack last year's champion jockey, in the irons.

Next comes Hasty House farm's double entry of Sea O Erin, who likes the mud, and Prince Noor. Hedley Woodhouse, who was second four times in the Widener, will ride Sea O Erin, and John Adams, the balding grandfather, has the mount on Prince Noor.

El Chama, the Venezuelan champion, is assigned equal weight with Social Outcast of 121 pounds and will be ridden by his regular jockey, Raul Bustamante. Trainer Jack Labelle said Nashua can do anything better than his horse and he is aiming for second money of $20,000.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Man of Destiny gets in with 105 pounds. Steve Brooks riding.

A surprise entry was Spring Hill farm's Jamie K., owned by the International Boxing Club president, James D. Norris. Jamie K., will carry 105 pounds, with Logan Batcheller aboard. As a 3-year-old Jamie K. was known as Native Dancer's shadow, losing neck decisions to the Vanderbilt gray in the Preakness and Belmont takes.

Good weather was forecast, with a high of around 75 degrees, and a fast track. It will be partly cloudy with no rain in prospect.

It will be Nashua's first start since Oct. 15, when he won the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park, but the big bay has worked brilliantly, covering a mile and a quarter at Tropical Park in 2:01.4-5 in a Tuesday trial spin.

Santee's Lawyer Delivers Threat Of Investigation

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—UP—Counsel for Wes Santee Friday demanded a public trial for the American miller who is expected to be suspended Sunday on professional charges and threatened a federal investigation of both the A.A.U. and the U. S. Olympic committee.

Charles P. Grimes, attorney for Santee, Friday invaded the A.A.U. offices in an attempt to obtain records of the committee which is investigating charges that the 4:00.5 miller received excessive expenses. He didn't get beyond the reception desk, being told that National Secretary Dan Ferris was "not available."

Asserting that Santee was "guilty of nothing," Grimes reiterated that the Marine lieutenant had been cleared of the professionalism charges by the Missouri Valley A.A.U. Association last November and that he would attempt to be heard by the A.A.U. executive committee Sunday before it makes its decision in the case.

Grimes said that "if there is new evidence" and Santee is suspended permanently he would amend:

A public trial; Santee's right to counsel; Santee's right to be confronted by his accusers, and the admission of all legal evidence "and not common report, hearsay and rumor."

As the Marine Corps meanwhile separated itself from the case on grounds that "Marines who desire legal representation on private matters must engage their own counsel," Grimes also challenged the legality of both the A.A.U. and the U. S. Olympic committee.

The attorney said he would suggest to interested House and Senate committees a federal investigation of both organizations.

Quast, Brown Duo Take Everglades Mixed Foursome

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—Anne Quast and J. Walcott Brown, strong favorites after the opening round, defeated Jane Nelson and William Hyndman today to win the Everglades Mixed Foursome Golf Tournament, 5 and 3.

They opened the round strongly, taking the first four holes and were never in danger. Miss Quast, Marysville, Wash., 18-year-old, played a steady game while Brown, a 53-year-old Manassquan, N.J., banker, excelled at putting.

They led up with six holes to go but lost the 13th and 14th on trapped balls.

Hyndman, Philadelphia, fired in to a trap on the 15th hole and Miss Nelson, Indianapolis, drove out too strongly, the ball sailing over the green. Hyndman missed a putt attempt and conceded the match.

Brown has played in the finals of this tournament four times in five years but with different partners. He was on the winning team once previously.

Miss Quast, a co-ed at the University of Washington, is making her first tour of Florida.

Cupit Climbs To 5th Spot In Texas Open

Bolt, Finsterwald, Palmer Share Tie For 36-Hole Lead

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 17—UP—Don Palmer, a 38-year-old greenskeeper from Dubuque, Iowa, and veterans Tommy Bolt and Dow Finsterwald were in front of a host of par-busters Friday with 137 to 138 in the 36-hole mark in the $20,000 Texas Open.

Bolt, Chattanooga, Tenn., had a 70 Friday. Finsterwald, of Bedford Heights, Ohio, a 68, and Palmer a 69 to replace Mike Fetchik, the first round leader.

Fetchik, the Mahopac, N. Y., pro who set a new course record with a 63 Thursday, blew to a 78 to tie with 15 others at 141.

Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., Texas Open winner in 1954, and Doug Ford, Kiamasha Lake, N. Y., a three-time runner-up, were tied for fourth place at the halfway mark with 138 totals.

Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, fired the day's best round, a 66, for a 139 total. Five others, Buster Cupit, Ruston, La., Walter Burkemo, Franklin, Mich., Jack Burke Jr., Kiamasha Lake, N. Y., Joe Jimenez, Midlothian, Ill., and Bill Ogden, Chicago, Ill., were also tied for the fifth spot with Vossler.

For the second straight day the weathermen took a setback when the tournament was unrelentingly mild temperatures at Fort Sam Houston golf course instead of a cold and wet clime.

Par came easy for the professionals and only seven strokes separate the 67 professionals who qualified with 144 or better for the final rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Among those who couldn't make the 144 qualifying total was Ted Kroll, last week's winner at the Tucson Open. Others included Bob Toski, Billy Maxwell, Ed Furgol, Gardiner Dickinson, Ed Oliver and Wally Ulrich.

The leading amateurs were a 8, (AN Antonio products, British A teur champion Joe Conrad and Bobby Smith, each with 147s. Jim Tom Blair, the son of the Mississippi lieutenant governor who raised eyebrows at Tucson, had a 149 total.

New Evidence Reopens Hearing For Boxing Case

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 — A decision on the fate of Promoter Tex Sullivan and his London sporting Club was delayed today when the New York State athletic commission and Sullivan's attorney agreed to re-open the Thursday to consider new evidence.

Julius Helfand, commission chairman, was expected to announce his verdict today but the case was re-opened to permit questions about "certain checks and documents" that have been submitted to the commission since the close of the formal hearings Jan. 25.

"A review of certain testimony by Sullivan is somewhat clouded by this new information," said Helfand. He said Bob Christenberry, the other member of the commission, had suggested the re-opening.

After examining the "certain checks and documents" for about an hour in a private conference with his client, Sullivan's lawyer, Francis W. H. Adams consented and even asked for a re-opening. Due to pressure of other business, Adams asked Helfand to delay the announced resumption from Monday to Thursday.

There was no hint of the ultimate decision from Helfand, who had charged Sullivan and Willie Gilzenberg, his former partner, with violating nine commission rules in operating their Monday night televised fights from St. Nicholas Arena. Gilzenberg had turned in his license as corporation treasurer and sold out to Sullivan Jan. 24 but Helfand refused to accept his resignation.

Sullivan and Gilzenberg had been charged with association with persons convicted of crime, bookmakers and persons of similar pursuit and of trying to move to Baltimore to "sabotage" the commission in its fight with the Boxing Guild of New York. Other charges included paying a fighter in cash instead of by check and dealing with a manager not licensed in New York.

The commission cleared two preliminary fighters, Raybon Stubbs, of Pittsburgh and Rudy Gwin of Cleveland, of any wrong doing in last Friday's scheduled six-round fight at Madison Square Garden which was stopped by referee Al Lind and ruled "no contest" at 2:37 of the fourth.

Swaps Makes Comeback Success At Santa Anita

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 17—UP—Swaps raced to a smashing comeback victory at Santa Anita after a layoff of nearly six months as he captured the $15,000 Los Angeles County Fair Handicap by about two lengths.

The 1955 Kentucky Derby winner was shaken up but once by jockey Willie Shoemaker turning into the stretch and Swaps responded to pull away from Bobby Brocato who was second. Arrogate finished third and Joe Jones was fourth in the field of seven starters.

Swaps raced the mile and a sixteenth in the good time of 1:43 flat and demonstrated that he would be a tough horse to beat in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 25. Despite his long absence from the races and his top impost of 127 pounds, Swaps was sent off the three to five favorite of the crowd of 21,500 racing fans. He returned $3.40, 2.80 and 2.20 across the board.

At the start Swaps broke alertly but Shoemaker made no effort to fight for the early lead as Ozbeg and Guerrero vied for the pacesetter's role. Bobby Brocato was third in the early stages and Swaps laid back in fourth position.

Swaps raced slightly wide in the early stages to avoid trouble and did not begin to make his move until going into the final turn. By that time the pace-setters started to fade and Bobby Brocato carried second high impost of 124 pounds took the lead. But as they came around the turn Swaps was shaken up by Shoemaker and he moved up boldly on the leader.

Athletics' Gray Claims Baseball Players' Medal

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—John Gray of the Kansas City Athletics made a repeated today in the National Baseball Players' Golf Tournament when he won medalist honors with 37-38-75 over the 6,265-yard par 70 Miami feat of last February by the identical score.

Jim Hearn of the New York Giants was second among low scorers today with 40-38-78, while Manager Al Lopez of the Cleveland Indians, who lost in a 22-hole playoff with Alvin Dark of the Giants last year, had 42-39-81.

Gray had trouble finding the greens and three putted two of them. He had birdies with a 10-foot putt on No. 6 and an 8-foorer on No. 13.

Art Sommerfield, former Toronto pitcher, turned in the best score of the day with 34-37-71 to win minor league honors. Pete Harris, formerly of the Atlanta Crackers, had 72.

Defending Champion Jack Russell among the inactive major leaguers was tops with 41-36-77 while Jimmy Foxx and Augie Bergamo tied with 79s.

In the baseball executive division, Sid Salomon Jr. of the Miami Marlins led with 37-36-73 and Charles Ulbig of the Philadelphia Bulletin led the press division with 39-37-76. Bill MacDonald of the Miami Marlins led the guest division with 43-43-86.

Match play starts tomorrow with two 18-hole rounds and two more on Sunday to wind up the tournament. Dark is on hand to defend his championship and did not have to qualify.

Longest field goal kicked by a player from UCLA last season was the 35 - yarder booted by Jim Decker in the Washington game.

Cotton

New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 35 cents a bale lower to 25 cents higher today.

Price movements were narrow as hedging and liquidation were offset by mill buying and limited commission house demand.

In old crop months, interest pivoted on evening up operations in nearby March prior to first notice day next Thursday.

Nearly July sagged partly on selling by traders who covered contracts in March. New crop months established no definite trend, reflecting uncertainty over farm legislation. The Senate is scheduled to take up the farm bill next week.

The Census Bureau reported January cotton consumption at 746,996 running bales as compared with trade expectations of about 763,000 bales. Consumption for the first six months of the season, August-January, was 4,673,010 bales and 259,845 bales ahead of the similar period a year earlier.

The Kansas City Southern Railway declared a dividend of 75 cents and an extra dividend of 25 cents on common stock payable March 15, to holders of February 29.

McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, Inc. and its subsidiaries for the year ending December 31, showed common shares earned $7.14 against $6.73, the previous year.

The directors of Electric Auto-Lite Company are scheduled to meet Thursday, February 23, at which time dividend action could be considered. The company currently pays 50 cents quarterly.

The last declaration was made in November of 1935 at which time the regular payment was supplemented by a 50 cents extra.

Gambles Skogmo Inc. has sold its block of 287,000 shares of Western Auto Supply Company stock to National Management Ltd. of Montreal, Canada.

The Timken Roller Bearing Company will cut back from a five day to a four day week starting today due to a drop in automotive passenger car bearings.

The Justice Department has agreed to let a National Theaters plant produce a limited number of films in its new Cinemacolor process.

The Journal of Commerce announced that Chile plans to ask the United States Copper Companies to raise the price by three to five cents a pound on copper which they mine in Chile and sell in the United States.

Cotton New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (P)—Cotton futures closed 35 cents a bale lower to 25 cents higher today. Price movements were narrow as hedging and liquidation were offset by mill buying and limited commission house demand. In old crop months, interest pivoted on evening up operations in nearby March prior to first notice day next Thursday.

Nearly July sagged partly on selling by traders who covered contracts in March. New crop months established no definite trend, reflecting uncertainty over farm legislation. The Senate is scheduled to take up the farm bill next week.

The Census Bureau reported January cotton consumption at 746,996 running bales as compared with trade expectations of about 765,000 bales. Consumption for the first six months of the season, August-January, was 4,673,010 bales and 259,845 bales ahead of the similar period a year earlier.

The market was quiet and dull with prices showing little change from yesterday's close. Clayton continued to liquidate some Marches but selling an estimated 7,500 bales. After good trade buying in the nears and short covering in the distant a fair weight of offerings were evident on the belief there is growing opposition to high, rigid supports being written into the final farm bill. Stories emanating from Washington indicate a possible strong coalition between some senators and representatives to finalize a bill calling for an effective subsidy to the grower by which mills would buy cotton at a price lower than present support levels. Liverpool closed 10 to 25 English points lower. The Karnak contract in Alexandria continued to show strength as it is reported iron curtain countries continue to buy substantial portion of Egypt's production.

The census bureau reported consumption during the January period at 746,996 bales as compared to 716,045 a year ago. The national cotton council has urged the agriculture department to negotiate an agreement between the United States and Japan to definitely limit imports of textiles and apparels.

The market closed real strong Friday. One of the main causes was the veto of the Natural Gas Bill by President Eisenhower, which led some to believe that he would run again.

The Kansas City Southern Railway declared a dividend of 75 cents and an extra dividend of 25 cents on common stock payable March 15, to holders of February 29.

Engineers' Week Will Be Observed

National Engineers' Week will be observed this year from Feb. 19-

25, announced J. D. Wink, Jr., chairman of the Monroe section of national engineers' week.

Wink said the purpose of the observance is to emphasize the engineering profession and to encourage high school students to study technological courses that will prepare them for the engineering field.

Posters will be displayed in high schools and special films shown over TV stations which will deal with different phases of engineering such as guided missiles, atomic energy, and space satellites.

President Eisenhower, in a letter concerning National Engineers' Week, said, "In this age of accelerating technological progress our need for engineers... is expanding. I hope these programs will increase among our citizens in general a knowledge and appreciation of the debt this country owes to the engineering profession."

There are large coal deposits in the antarctic continent, indicating that it was once tropical or semitropical.

Motorist Drowns After Accident At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 17 (AP)—A motorist drowned today in a freak accident that pitched him unconscious into a foot of water where he remained unnoticed for four hours.

Police identified the victim as Lloyd Clark McCrae, 32, an Illinois Central Railroad worker.

In reconstructing the accident, police said he smashed through warning flares and two barricades marking the end of a new pavement on Plank Road, a major thoroughfare in the city.

Seventy feet beyond the barricades was a rectangular drainage ditch section 17 feet deep. The car tumbled into the deep ditch, coming to rest in one corner of the excavation, the only corner with any water.

McCrae's body was found in the foot-deep water where he apparently had been tossed unconscious.

Police said the crash occurred about 4 a.m. and no one noticed the car because of the depth of the ditch. A watchman who found the scattered warning signals discovered the tragedy four hours later.

Constable-Killer Put To Death In Miss. Gas House

PARCHMAN, Miss., Feb. 17 (AP)—O. C. McNair, 24-year-old Negro, died at 2:06 p.m. today for the pistol killing of a Florence constable in 1953.

McNair was condemned for the slaying of constable William L. Mullican of Rankin County. Testimony during the trial showed the Negro shot Mullican with the officer's pistol while purportedly taking him to the scene of a fight.

Sheriff D. P. Gayden of Rankin County was in charge of the execution.

Prison officials said McNair shook hands with the other inmates of death row in the penitentiary maximum security cellblock and told them to "keep reading your Bible."

On the way to the tiny death chamber, McNair told officers he was completely happy.

"I forgive everyone," he said, "and I hope everyone forgives me."

He stepped readily into the chamber and sat promptly in the chair. Just before he was strapped in, he waved to the witnesses.

The door clanged shut shortly after 2 p.m. and McNair died in six minutes. The lethal gas was blown from the room at 2:40 p.m. and the prison physician declared the Negro dead.

The officials made the report yesterday on the heels of the airline company's announcement that it plans to go all out to extend its routes from Monroe to the Texas city.

Frank W. Hulise, president of Southern Airways, Inc., told sales personnel of the airline this week that he expects Civil Aeronautics Board action before the end of the year on an application by his company to make the Monroe-Houston route extension.

The proposed extension would be via the intermediate points at Alexandria, Lake Charles, and Beaumont-Port Arthur.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 — UP — The National Kraut Packers Association advised Germans Friday that sauerkraut was invented by the Chinese.

The association said kraut originated in China about 300 B. C. and roving bands of Tartars carried it to Europe.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17 — UP — The body of an unidentified man was found in the Mississippi River near Chalmette early today.

St. Bernard Parish chief deputy Sidney Torres said the body probably had been in the water for at least a month and early examination was unable to determine the man's race or age.

Torres said an arm and leg were missing from the body.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 17 — UP — The Mississippi House of Representatives today passed three non-controversial general bills and a bloc of local and private measures in a quiet 48-minute session.

The House postponed until Monday a controversial bill to repeal absentee voting laws. Under present law, any voter may cast an absentee ballot.

The Senate did not meet today.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17 — UP —

Hussey Blasts

Hussey said he has been a supporter of the vetoed Fulbright-Harris bill.

The President, vetoing the measure that caused an inquiry into a $2,500 campaign contribution refused by Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), said:

"Since the passage of the bill, a body of evidence has accumulated indicating that private persons, apparently representing only a very small segment of a great and vital industry, have been seeking to further their own interests by highly questionable activities."

And he declared any new legislation should carry language protecting the right of consumers to fair prices.

The President's veto "in the face of such strong recommendations by his own advisers, his own party members and his own Federal Power Commission," Hussey said, "raises one wonder where he gets the nerve upon which he bases his veto."

"His using the indiscretion of one member engaged in the industry as an excuse for his veto is absolutely ridiculous and is without considered regard for the natural resources of the United States and those charged with the conservation of these natural resources and the maintenance of an adequate supply."

Hussey insisted the President created a cabinet committee on economic resources and fuel which recommended to him passage of legislation similar to the Fulbright-Harris bill.

"The Federal Power Commission which regulates gas transportation from the federal standpoint, strongly recommended the bill."

"And the Congress itself, by a substantial majority and including a substantial majority of the President's own political party, passed the bill."

When President Eisenhower speaks of the consuming public, Hussey contended, "he must not have been informed of the fact that during 1953 Louisiana consumed more gas than New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey combined and more gas than Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin combined."

The commissioner added "Mr. Eisenhower must not have known or realized the impact of the decision some time ago of the U. S. Supreme Court, requiring the FPC to fix the producer's price for gas upon the annual increases in reserves."

"Even a cursory look at the reserve picture for 1955," Hussey continued, "will show any enlightened person that the court decision has decreased development of gas reserves. The President's veto will greatly discourage this search for new reserves."

On natural gas consumer prices, Hussey called attention to New York consumer rates. "Of the $2.08 per 1,000 cubic feet they pay in New York," he said, "more than 75 per cent goes to local distributing companies."

"Gas produced in Louisiana for 32 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and transported more than 1,000 miles to New York for less than 30 cents, has its price increased five-fold in New York by the time it reaches the consumer."

"If the President is concerned about the high prices to consumers, he should investigate the high local distribution costs which account in many instances for 75 to 80 per cent of the cost of gas to the domestic consumer."

"If he wants the price of gas lowered, then he should regulate the costs and not merely the price to me," Hussey insisted, "his action is incredible."

The natural gas industry must remain attractive to investors, Hussey said, to support the search for new reserves.

The Coast Guard sent a plane and readied a cutter today to search the Gulf of Mexico for two fishing vessels overdue from their home ports. Twelve men are aboard the vessels.

The Nancy G., a 36-footer with two men aboard, was due at Pascagoula, Miss., on Wednesday. A Coast Guard plane has left Biloxi to hunt for the vessel.

The Coast Guard said nine men are aboard the William B. McDonald, an 81-foot fishing vessel that was due in Panama City, Fla., on Monday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — UP — House investigators Friday assailed a big jet plane company as a government "subsidiary" whose use of federal equipment assures its owners financial profits.

The testimony has brought out that North American has rent free use of more than $95 million in government facilities while working on military orders which represent 99.66 per cent of its business.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 17 — UP — O. A. Robinson is the fifth and latest publisher and general manager of the afternoon State Times.

Davis Milner, president of Citizens Publishing Co., made the announcement after today's board of directors meeting.

Robinson was general manager of the Charlotte, N. C. Observer for the last six years. He had been in the paper's advertising department since 1924.

GULFPORT, Miss., Feb. 17 — UP — A 45-year-old woman was killed tonight and five others injured when an automobile collided with a log-laden truck nine miles north of here.

State highway patrolmen identified the dead woman as Mrs. Nell Bensinger. They said she died shortly after being admitted at Memorial Hospital.

LONDON, Feb. 17 — Britain announced today a defense program accounting output of a variety of nuclear weapons. These include an intercontinental-type missile.

Prime Minister Eden's government said the program was essential to defeat what the British termed Russia's fundamental aim of world domination.

Fresh Snow Hits Europe; 616 Lives Claimed By Cold

LONDON, Feb. 17 — Fresh snowstorms tonight haped new misery on Europe, ice-locked in a relentless three-week cold wave which already has claimed 616 lives.

Damage to crops ran into hundreds of millions of dollars. Fuel shortages grew. Yugoslav army artillery shelled ice barriers massed on the Morava River in eastern Serbia in an effort to ease flooding.

Known deaths attributed to the 20th Century's worst freezeup: France 17, Turkey 72, Italy 74, Yugoslavia 67, Britain 50, Denmark 33, Greece 30, Germany 30, Austria 19, Holland 23, Portugal 17, Spain 19, Switzerland 12, Belgium 10, Sweden 6, Poland 4, Norway 3. The cold extended south to Africa where five additional deaths were counted — three in Spanish Morocco and two in Libya.

Snow fell over London, East Anglia and southeast England and the forecast was "very much colder weather." Rugby games were called off.

Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, just returned from the tropical sun of humid Nigeria, drove through a snow storm to Windsor Castle with their two children.

1,200 feet. The plane hit about 100 feet below the crest.

Wreckage and bodies were scattered over about a 300 yard area and the largest fragments were still smoking hours later.

A murky combination of fog and drizzling rain made visibility practically zero over most of the area Friday, apparently contributing to the crash.

CNA controller Lee Houseman said the pilot reported he was on approach to Alameda NAS just before he went off the air.

The scene was less than two miles from the spot where a United Airlines DC-6B crashed in August, 1951, killing 50 persons.

It was the second major military aircraft crash in northern California in less than 24 hours. Thursday a B-52 jet bomber exploded in flight and crashed near Tracy, some 40 miles east of here, killing four of the eight men aboard.

Military and civilian rescue parties immediately converged on Friday's crash, but were several hours reaching the scene because of the rough terrain and steep, heavily-wooded ravines in the area.

A witness to a neighboring rancher, who said he heard the plane approaching low in the rainy sky and spotted it as it flashed overhead just before the impact.

"I could tell by the sound it was too low," he said. "I went to the doorway of my shop and looked. I saw the four-engine aircraft headed southwest."

"About two seconds after I saw it and thought it was going to hit the hill opposite me, I heard this terrific crash."

The plane crashed on the Elmer O'Connell ranch. The hills were overcast. To clear the hill in front of my house it had to be 1,600 feet up. It hit the next ridge beyond that."

compromise, possibly requiring a written entrance examination and a "color" clause for home games.

LSU has admitted Negro graduate students under court order for several years.

An LSU spokesman said, "all of the deans of the academic divisions" were invited to attend the closed session of the board tomorrow morning. The board meets at 2 p.m. to take formal action.

The spokesman said entrance requirement changes were a "delicate area" which could lead to "accrediting difficulties."

But he added many state universities had recently added written entrance examinations "just to raise entrance requirements."

The three units of the consolidated University of North Carolina, North Carolina State and Woman's College at Greensboro, adopted entrance examinations yesterday.

Officials stressed it was recommended by university officials in "an effort to improve the scholastic standards of our high schools."

A Louisiana segregation leader predicted the LSU board "will want to establish the moral and intellectual fitness, as well as the health qualifications."

State Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the Legislative Segregation Committee, stressed the board was setting under its own initiative, but added he had discussed the matter with individual board members.

"There is a feeling on the board that they ought to enact certain features and try them out, then make changes and add other features as necessary," he said.

But he added, "there's been an undue emphasis in the news on removing colored people from the university. What I imagine the university plans to do is to place admission strictly on a basis of qualifications."

He said he thought the admission requirements would eliminate the majority of Negro applicants.

A. P. Tureaud, New Orleans Negro attorney who is Louisiana counsel for the NAACP, said "We have no objection to them setting basic requirements for admission just as long as they don't include race."

But he added the requirements should not be used "as a subterfuge to bypass the court ruling. I think it was brought up at this time for that purpose."

And Tureaud said the NAACP would take necessary legal action to open up LSU "if we have applicants for entrance to the junior division and they show no disposition to admit them. The doctrine of separate but equal is dead."

Tureaud's son, A. P. Tureaud Jr., was the first Negro undergraduate at LSU. He attended only briefly, then transferred to Xavier University, Catholic Negro college in New Orleans, when LSU appealed the district court ruling.

The U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals last month upheld the lower court ruling and so far LSU has announced no plans to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

LSU attorneys interpret the order as applying to Tureaud or any other qualified Negro seeking to enroll for a special pre-law course in the college of Arts and Sciences, but not as a broad open door order for all Negro undergraduate applicants.

Both Baton Rouge sports editors predict a "color clause" would severely hamper LSU athletics.

Dan Hardesty of the afternoon State-Times said it means "LSU must choose between drawing back into a solid South schedule in football and other athletics, or playing an occasional major intercollegiate game against a school which might or might not have Negro players at that particular time."

He added that with a strict overall "color" clause "LSU would have to curtail its basketball schedule to eliminate the occasional trip into the Midwest or East. The boxing team probably would be disbanded for lack of opponents as there isn't enough good opposition in the Southland. The basketball team would find its early season games against touring Midwest teams."

"And all the Tiger teams would have to drop out of national competition. Boxing, basketball, track and golf teams would have to avoid the NCAA tournaments, and the football team wouldn't be eligible for a bowl invitation unless it so happened that another Dixie team had already been selected."

And Bud Monet of The Morning Advocate said it could mean Southern universities would "wind up playing themselves, year after year."

"Such a thing wouldn't be healthy for athletics and they would decline to a low ebb. Intercollegiate games are always used to draw big crowds and pay off the huge athletic budgets."

Monet concluded "the insistence of 'color clause' will mean the end of intercollegiate games, bowl participation, and national recognition."

"It could be the goats will graze in the huge stadiums, pigeons roost in press boxes and hitching posts replace parking meters."

Hussey Blasts

Hussey said he has been a supporter of the vetoed Fulbright-Harris bill.

The President, vetoing the measure that caused an inquiry into a $2,500 campaign contribution refused by Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), said:

"Since the passage of the bill, a body of evidence has accumulated indicating that private persons, apparently representing only a very small segment of a great and vital industry, have been seeking to further their own interests by highly questionable activities."

And he declared any new legislation should carry language protecting the right of consumers to fair prices.

The President's veto "in the face of such strong recommendations by his own advisers, his own party members and his own Federal Power Commission," Hussey said, "makes one wonder where he gets the advice upon which he bases his veto."

"His using the indiscretion of one member engaged in the industry as an excuse for his veto is absolutely ridiculous and is without considered regard for the natural resources of the United States and those charged with the conservation of these natural resources and the maintenance of an adequate supply."

Hussey insisted the President created a cabinet committee on economic resources and fuel which recommended to him passage of legislation similar to the Fulbright-Harris bill.

"The Federal Power Commission which regulates gas transportation from the federal standpoint, strongly recommended the bill."

"And the Congress itself, by a substantial majority and including a substantial majority of the President's own political party, passed the bill."

When President Eisenhower speaks of the consuming public, Hussey contended, "he must not have been informed of the fact that during 1953 Louisiana consumed more gas than New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey combined and more gas than Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin combined."

The commissioner added "Mr. Eisenhower must not have known or realized the impact of the decision some time ago of the U. S. Supreme Court, requiring the FPC to fix the producer's price for gas upon the annual increases in reserves."

"Even a cursory look at the reserve picture for 1955," Hussey continued, "will show any enlightened person that the court decision has decreased development of gas reserves. The President's veto will greatly discourage this search for new reserves."

On natural gas consumer prices, Hussey called attention to New York consumer rates. "Of the $2.08 per 1,000 cubic feet they pay in New York," he said, "more than 75 per cent goes to local distributing companies."

"Gas produced in Louisiana for 12 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and transported more than 1,000 miles to New York for less than 30 cents, has its price increased five-fold in New York by the time it reaches the consumer."

"If the President is concerned about the high prices to consumers, he should investigate the high local distribution costs which account in many instances for 75 to 80 per cent of the cost of gas to the domestic consumer."

"If he wants the price of gas regulated, then he should regulate the ends and not merely the proceeds."

"About two seconds after I saw it and thought it was going to hit the hill opposite me, I heard this terrific crash."

"The plane crashed on the Elmer O'Connell ranch. The hills were overcast. To clear the hill in front of my house it had to be 1,600 feet up. It hit the next ridge beyond that."

LSU Supervisors

LSU has admitted Negro graduate students under court order for several years.

An LSU spokesman said, "all of the deans of the academic divisions" were invited to attend the closed session of the board tomorrow morning. The board meets at 2 p.m. to take formal action.

The spokesman said entrance requirement changes were a "delicate area" which could lead to "accrediting difficulties."

But he added many state universities had recently added written entrance examinations "just to raise entrance requirements."

The three units of the consolidated University of North Carolina, North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State and Woman's College at Greensboro, adopted entrance examinations yesterday.

Officials stressed it was recommended by university officials in "an effort to improve the scholastic standards of our high schools."

A Louisiana segregation leader predicted the LSU board "will want to establish the moral and intellectual fitness, as well as the health qualifications."

State Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the Legislative Segregation Committee, stressed the board was acting under its own initiative, but added he had discussed the matter with individual board members.

"There is a feeling on the board that they ought to enact certain features and try them out, then make changes and add other features as necessary," he said.

But he added, "there's been an undue emphasis in the news on removing colored people from the university. What I imagine the university plans to do is to place admission strictly on a basis of qualifications."

He said he thought the admission requirements would eliminate the majority of Negro applicants.

A. P. Tureaud, New Orleans Negro attorney who is Louisiana counsel for the NAACP, said "We have no objection to them setting basic requirements for admission just as long as they don't include race."

But he added the requirements should not be used "as a subterfuge to bypass the court ruling. I think it was brought up at this time for that purpose."

And Tureaud said the NAACP would take necessary legal action to open up LSU "if we have applicants for entrance to the junior division and they show no disposition to admit them. The doctrine of separate but equal is dead."

Tureaud's son, A. P. Tureaud Jr., was the first Negro undergraduate at LSU. He attended only briefly, then transferred to Xavier University, Catholic Negro college in New Orleans, when LSU appealed the district court ruling.

The U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals last month upheld the lower court ruling and so far LSU has announced no plans to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

LSU attorneys interpret the order as applying to Tureaud or any other qualified Negro seeking to enroll for a special pre-law course in the college of Arts and Sciences, but not as a broad open door order for all Negro undergraduate applicants.

Both Baton Rouge sports editors predict a "color clause" would severely hamper LSU athletics.

Dan Hardesty said it means "LSU must choose between drawing back into a solid South schedule in football and other athletics, or playing an occasional major inter-sectional game against a school which might or might not have Negro players at that particular time."

He added that with a strict overall "color" clause "LSU would have to curtail its basketball schedule to eliminate the occasional trip into the Midwest or East. The boxing team probably would be disbanded for lack of opponents as there isn't enough good opposition in the Southland. The basketball team would lose its early season games against touring Midwest teams."

"And all the Tiger teams would have to drop out of national competition. Boxing, basketball, track and golf teams would have to avoid the NCAA tournaments, and the football team wouldn't be eligible for a bowl invitation unless it so happened that another Dixie team had already been selected."

And Bud Montet of The Morning Advocate said it could mean Southern universities would "wind up playing themselves, year after year."

"Such a thing wouldn't be healthy for athletics and they would decline to a low ebb. Inter-sectional games are always used to draw big crowds and pay off the huge athletic budgets."

Montet concluded "the insistence of 'color clause' will mean the end of inter-sectional games, bowl participation, and national recognition."

"It could be the goats will graze in the huge stadiums, pigeons roost in press boxes and hitching posts replace parking meters."

UNIVERSITY BANS PHOTOS, 2 CAMERAMEN ARRESTED—Pictures of Thursday's convocation at the University of Alabama, showing President O. C. Carmichael (arrow) just as he finished speaking to students, were taken despite the school's effort to ban photographs. This view (top) was published by the Birmingham News. Two photographers were taken into custody by university police for taking pictures of Carmichael addressing the student body on the university's plans for handling the bitter controversy over enrollment of Negro co-ed Autherine Lucy. which had frozen after the Clark boy fell through. They were Edward Pansewicz of Brookline and Donald Tremblay of Salem.

An autopsy was ordered immediately by District Attorney Ephraim Martin who said an inquest would be held. He told newsmen a death could not be "considered a lark."

The boy's father, Alfred R. Clark of Harvey, Ill., a Bell Telephone Co. executive, came here Tuesday to join the search. Mrs. Clark, who is in poor health, remained at home and kept touch by telephone.

The father too was placed under a doctor's care after long sleepless nights and harrowing days. He said he lost hope for his son's survival when his white buckskin shoe and white silk scarf were found Thursday at the reservoir.

Police believed young Clark sought to cross the frozen, 25-foot deep reservoir when he saw the headlights of automobiles on Superhighway Route 128 on the other side. Near the middle he struck a patch of "rotten ice," it appeared, and fell through, losing his scarf and shoe as he lost his footing.

Monroe Civitans Hear Talk By Former Refugee

The Monroe Civitan club Thursday night heard an unusual and formal talk by Manfred Klose, a former German refugee, who, with his family, is now settled in Monroe. They have become naturalized citizens. Klose has attended Ouachita Parish High school and will graduate with the class in May. His grades were exceptionally high.

He was introduced by Chief John T. Reagan, naval recruiting officer, acting program chairman, who paid tribute to the study career of the speaker and his efforts and those of his family to establish themselves in this country.

Klose told of his birth in a family where the grandfather and father had made their living by brick laying and housepainting and were getting on well when the war came.

Then he related how it fared with his parents, his brother, younger sister and himself. They were separated and fled from place to place.

He told how the Russians ran them out of their villages and homes. In the course of time he said the family got to the United States and he himself was for a time in the German prison camp in West Monroe.

The family has proceeded to make a living, the father being able to resort to housepainting. In due time they have become naturalized, and he has resumed his badly interrupted education.

Upon graduation he will enter the U.S. Navy.

President Lea S. Thompson, urged attendance at the Tulane Monroe educational conference Sunday. Registration is in Hotel Virginia at 11 a.m., luncheon at 12:30 p.m., and a panel session at 2 p.m. In attendance at the meeting were two representatives from the West Monroe Civitan club, who told of plans for the annual Monroe West Monroe convention April 29.

President Thompson named a committee from the Monroe club to aid in preparing plans for the meeting. Tommy Gillula, chairman; H. Harold Riggs, Conrad Lee, John T. Reagan and Milton A. Childers.

2 Sentenced To 12 Years Each In Narcotics Cases

Because "marijuana doesn't grow on towels," two transient Arkansas carnival workers will spend the next 12 years at the state penitentiary at Angola.

Ernest Allen, 28, and Frank A. Gault, 24, were given the sentences by Judge David I. Garrett for possession of marijuana in fourth district court Friday.

They were convicted by a 12-man jury in the court earlier this week.

Before sentencing, Judge Garrett reviewed the facts in the case, recalling in particular that gleanings of marijuana had been found in the clothing of the pair and in a towel in their automobile, and made the statement that "marijuana doesn't grow on towels."

Judge Garrett said the pair were engaged in the "most contemptible racket."

Allen and Gault were arrested by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department on September 14, 1958, after deputies received a tip that the pair were planning to smuggle narcotics to a prisoner in the parish jail.

In other action in district court Friday, Bill Lybass of Houston, Tex., whose 20th birthday was Friday, was given a birthday present from the judge in the form of two one-year sentences, not to run concurrently, on two counts of theft in this parish.

Lybass pleaded guilty to the charge. He was charged jointly with W. K. Jolner, of Mangham, but Jolner did not enter a plea Friday.

Lybass is an ex-convict, having served two years for forgery in Texas.

At noon, trial of Steve Erdel, charged with felony theft, was underway before a five-man jury in the court. Erdel, a local television repairman, is accused of charging for a new television picture tube which, the state alleges, he did not place in the television set.

Monroe Civilians Hear Talk By Former Refugee

The Monroe Civitan club Thursday night heard an unusual and informal talk by Manfred Kiese, a former German refugee, who, with his family, is now settled in Monroe. They have become naturalized citizens. Kiese has attended Ouachita Parish High school and will graduate with the class in May. His grades are said to have been exceptionally high.

He was introduced by Chief John T. Reagan, naval recruiting officer, acting program chairman, who paid tribute to the sturdy career of the speaker and his efforts and those of his family to re-establish themselves in this country.

Kiese told of his birth in a family where the grandfather and father had made their living by brick-laying and housepainting and were getting on well when the war came.

Then he related how it fared with his parents, his brother, younger sister and himself. They were separated and fled from place to place.

He told how the Russians ran them out of this village and homes. In the course of time he said the family got to the United States and he himself was for a time in the German prison camp in West Monroe.

The family has proceeded to make a living, the father being able to resort to housepainting. In due time they have become naturalized, and he has resumed his badly interrupted education.

Upon graduation he will enter the U.S. Navy.

President Lea S. Thompson, urged attendance at the Tulane-Monroe educational conference Sunday. Registration is in Hotel Virginia at 11 a.m., luncheon at 12:30 p.m., and a panel session at 2 p.m.

In attendance at the meeting were two representatives from the West Monroe Civitan club, who told of plans for the annual Monroe-West Monroe convention April 28.

President Thompson named a committee from the Monroe club to aid in preparing plans for the meeting: Tommy Gilhula, chairman; H. Harold Riggs, Conrad Lee, John T. Reagan and Milton A. Childers.

2 Sentenced To 12 Years Each In Narcotics Cases

Because "marijuana doesn't grow on towels," two transient Arkansas carnival workers will spend the next 12 years at the state penitentiary at Angola.

Ernest Allen, 28, and Frank A. Ganje, 24, were given the sentences by Judge David I. Garrett for possession of marijuana in fourth district court Friday.

They were convicted by a 12-man jury in the court earlier this week.

Before sentencing, Judge Garrett reviewed the facts in the case, recalling in particular that gleanings of marijuana had been found in the clothing of the pair and in a towel in their automobile, and made the statement that "marijuana doesn't grow on towels."

Judge Garrett said the pair were engaged in the "most contemptible racket."

Allen and Ganje were arrested by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department on September 14, 1955, after deputies received a tip that the pair were planning to smuggle narcotics to a prisoner in the parish jail.

In other action in district court Friday, Bill Lybass of Houston, Tex., whose 29th birthday was Friday, was given a birthday present from the judge in the form of two one-year sentences, not to run concurrently, on two counts of theft in this parish.

Lybass pleaded guilty to the charge. He was charged jointly with W. K. Joiner, of Mangham, but Joiner did not enter a plea Friday.

Lybass is an ex-convict, having served two years for forgery in Texas.

At noon, trial of Steve Erdel, charged with felony theft, was underway before a five-man jury in the court. Erdel, a local television repairman, is accused of charging for a new television picture tube which, the state alleges, he did not place in the television set.
